Kubler,2016-01-12 Contextualized so learners know not only what to say but why when and with whom it is appropriate to use such language thorough and clear refreshing Dr Matthew Christensen Associate Professor of Chinese Brigham Young University Resources in Education ,1998 Rendering the Regional Edward M. Gunn,2006-01-01 For centuries the sub national languages of China have been a fundamental feature in daily life and popular culture while a standardized form of Mandarin has been adopted as the language of the state including education Suppressed during powerful movements to establish a modern national culture these local languages or dialects have nevertheless survived and their resurgence in the media and literature has caused tensions to surface Concerns for education law and commerce have all promoted a standard national language yet at the same time as local societies have undergone massive transformations the need to re imagine communities has repeatedly challenged the adequacy of a single language to represent them Moreover local languages have been presented in dramatically different and conflicted roles as symbols of the failure to assimilate to a cultural mainstream which in turn may be parodied as contingent and inadequate or asserting the identity of a community as a site of its own cultural production and not merely as a venue for transmitting a national culture Acknowledging local language as authentic may also reveal cultural hegemonies within regions and contested versions of communities This ground breaking study surveys in detail the sweep of local languages in television radio film and print culture of late twentieth century mainland China especially Beijing Shanghai Chongqing and Chengdu Hong Kong and Taiwan Focusing on these regions the analysis contrasts and compares these distinct communities to each other and to the ways in which they mediate culture as a national institution It draws on a wide range of critical cultural and media studies and explores how varied genres
