Mapping Small Places Examining Your Environment:

Children's Participation Roger A. Hart, 2013-10-11 People's relationship to nature is the greatest issue facing the world at the turn of the millennium and all over the world young people have shown enormous enthusiasm for environmental action. Many countries are radically reassessing both the role of citizens in managing their environment and the rights and responsibilities of children to be involved in shaping their own and their communities' futures. This book by one of the world's leading authorities on environmental education is written in the conviction that children can play a valuable and lasting role in sustainable development if their participation is taken seriously and planned with thought for their developing capabilities and unique strengths. Through direct participation children can develop a genuine appreciation of democracy and a sense of their own competence and responsibility. The planning, design, monitoring and management of the physical environment is an ideal domain for their participation in part because their commitment to it is so strong. The book is for planners, educationalists and environmentalists introducing the theory and the practice of children's participation and its importance for developing democracy and sustainable communities. It emphasises genuine participation where children are themselves involved in defining problems and acting as reflective critical participants in issues affecting their communities. The environment is interpreted broadly to include for example the planning of housing areas and the management of playgrounds. Detailed case studies are provided from urban and rural poor and middle class communities from both the North and South. For teachers, group facilitators and community leaders it presents organising principles, successful models, practical techniques and resources for involving young people in environmental projects. Open Space: People Space examines the nature and value of people's access to outdoor environments. Led by Edinburgh's OPENspace research centre, the debate focuses on current research to support good design for open space and brings expertise from a range of disciplines to look at an analysis of policy and planning issues and challenges, understanding the nature and experience of exclusion, the development of evidence-based inclusive design, innovative research approaches which focus on people's access to open space and the implications of that.
