Provides a clear view of the realities of the economic and social interactions between Native groups and the expanding Euro American population The last quarter of the 18th century was a period of extensive political economic and social change in North America as the continent wide struggle between European superpowers waned Native groups found themselves enmeshed in the market economy and new state forms of control among other new threats to their cultural survival Native populations throughout North America actively engaged the expanding marketplace in a variety of economic and social forms These actions often driven by and expressed through changes in material culture were supported by a desire to maintain distinctive ethnic identities Illustrating the diversity of Native adaptations in an increasingly hostile and marginalized world

this volume is continental in scope ranging from Connecticut to the Carolinas and westward through Texas and Colorado Calling on various theoretical perspectives the authors provide nuanced perspectives on material culture use as a manipulation of the market economy A thorough examination of artifacts used by Native Americans whether of Euro American or Native origin this volume provides a clear view of the realities of the economic and social interactions between Native groups and the expanding Euro American population and the engagement of these Native groups in determining their own fate

Portici Kathleen A. Parker, Jacqueline L. Hernigle, 1990 Manassas National Battlefield Park's General Management Plan 1983 named the Wheeler Tract as the site for the relocation of the picnic area and its attendant facilities The area chosen for this relocation had been previously identified as the site of the late eighteenth to early nineteenth century complex known as Portici An archeological study of the proposed relocation area was required pursuant to planning and development Nineteenth century Portici evolved from a small tenant occupied farmstead established during the eighteenth century This tenant farm grew into a middling tobacco plantation called Pohoke Later the eighteenth century dwelling was abandoned when Portici mansion house was constructed in circa 1820 Portici plantation became a flourishing middling multiple grain based plantation by the eve of the American Civil War Archeological and archival work was conducted to document and assess the eligibility of Pohoke Portici and the Lewis house for nomination to the National Register of Historic Places Collectively these three sites with all their ancillary sites on the Wheeler tract graphically depict the evolution of local lifeways and patterns of development in a frontier Piedmont plantation Abstract page vii
