

Politeness Notions

Two notions of politeness should be differentiated:

- Common politeness

Being polite means showing good manners and consideration for other people (e.g. open the door for a lady, give your seat to an elderly person in public transport)

- Linguistics politeness

The way people choose to speak and how the hearers react to their speech.

Politeness is essentially asymmetrical: what is polite with respect to hearer or to some third party will be impolite with respect to speaker, and vice versa.

Principles of Politeness, and the Polite Philosopher Philip Dormer Stanhope Earl of Chesterfield, 1792 Principles of Politeness, and the Polite Philosopher Ph. D. St Chesterfield, 1796 Lord Chesterfield's Principles of Politeness, and the Polite Philosopher .. A New Edition Philip Dormer Stanhope Earl of Chesterfield, 1792 The Politeness Principle Christina Martens, 2002-03-24 Seminar paper from the year 2001 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies Linguistics grade 3.0 C http://www.uni-jena.de/Institut_für_Anglistik/American_Studies/language/English/abstract/1/Overview_of_the_Politeness_Principle In everyday situations we have to communicate with other people to get information to gain knowledge about a topic or to reach a variety of goals To be successful one has to follow some important strategies Beside the rule of the language philosopher H. P. Grice which is called the Cooperative Principle there exists another concept that served when people are talking It is called the Politeness Principle which has above all been developed by Leech In the centre of this concept does not stand the information of a conversation but the effect of what is said on the people

Principles of Pragmatics Geoffrey N. Leech, 2016-02-17 Over the years pragmatics the study of the use and meaning of utterances to their situations has become a more and more important branch of linguistics as the inadequacies of a purely formalist abstract approach to the study of language have become more evident This book presents a rhetorical model of pragmatics that is a model which studies linguistic communication in terms of communicative goals and principles of good communicative behaviour In this respect Geoffrey Leech argues for a rapprochement between linguistics and the traditional discipline of rhetoric He does not reject the Chomskian revolution of linguistics but rather maintains that the language system in the abstract i.e. the grammar broadly in Chomsky's sense must be studied in relation to a fully developed theory of language use There is therefore a division of labour between grammar and rhetoric or in the study of meaning between semantics and pragmatics The book's main focus is thus on the development of a model of pragmatics within an overall functional model of language In this it builds on the speech act theory of Austin and Searle and the theory of conversational implicature of Grice but at the same time enlarges pragmatics to include politeness irony phatic communion and other social principles of linguistic behaviour Lord Chesterfield's Principles of Politeness Philip Dormer Stanhope Earl of Chesterfield, 1812 Request Strategies Yong-Ju Rue, Grace Qiao Zhang, 2008 This book investigates request strategies in Mandarin Chinese and Korean and is one of the first attempts to address cross cultural strategies employed in the speech act of requests in two non Western languages The data drawn from role plays and naturally recorded conversations complement each other in terms of exhaustiveness and authenticity This study explores the similarities and differences of the request patterns that emerged in the Chinese and Korean data and the intricate relation between request strategies and social factors such as power and distance The findings raise questions about the influence of methodology on data and the applicability of so called universals to East Asian languages They also offer new insights into generally held ideas of directness and requesting behaviours in Chinese and Korean and the problems of cross cultural and cross linguistic communication This research is suggestive for the disciplines of cross cultural pragmatics cross cultural communication contrastive linguistics applied linguistics and discourse analysis
