Dept. of Education, 1993 Policy and University Faculty Governance Julie A. Caplow, Michael T. Miller, 2006-01-01 Broad based inclusive decision making is the historical foundation for determining what should and can be taught how institutions should grow and who should become a part of the academic community This text brings together authors to examine faculty governance from a historical perspective tracing trends and common themes to the present day It offers real life strategies for building shared decision making environments Chapters deal with how governance is defined and utilized different aspects of internal governance performance the relationships between administrators and faculty the roles that middle managers play and how faculty leaders arise and communicate with their administrative counterparts Crisis in the Academy Christopher J. Lucas, 1998-03-15 Not since student turmoil and unrest wreaked havoc on the nation s campuses three decades ago has American higher education been the subject of so much controversy and popular criticism Countless indictments compete for the public's attention as critics explore vital issues confronting today's institutions of higher learning curricular fragmentation declining academic standards the apparent erosion of liberal learning within academe widespread neglect of undergraduate education in favour of academic research and unprecedented financial woes Confusion over fundamental priorities and purposes the author argues lies at the heart of the dilemma facing end of the century higher education Thoughtful and timely Crisis in the Academy offers a wide ranging analysis of contemporary higher education while making an important contribution to the ongoing public debate over the future of America's beleaguered and diverse institutions of higher learning

Implementing Effective Policies for Remedial and Developmental

Education Jan M. Ignash, 1997 In 1894 forty percent of college freshmen enrolled in pre collegiate programs to prepare for regular college coursework In Fall 1995 twenty nine percent of entering freshmen enrolled in at least one remedial course The debate over the need for and appropriateness of remedial developmental education at the postsecondary level has spanned a century The upcoming 1998 Reauthorization of the Higher Education Act has added fuel to the debate Legislators educators and the general public are asking questions and raising accountability issues Who needs remedial developmental education Why does the need for it appear to be increasing How much does it cost Who should pay for it Are remedial developmental programs effective Who should provide it Legislators and the public are upset over the perception that they are paying twice for the same education once in high school and once again in college Educators are concerned about the potential devaluation of higher education through the provision of large amounts of remedial developmental education And students too are unhappy with the time and expense necessary to develop English and math skills that they should have learned in high school Each chapter of this volume addresses a specific policy question involved in the debate over remedial developmental education and uses national and state data as well as information from case studies of individual institutions to provide insights into effective approaches to remedial developmental education This is the one hundredth issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Community Colleges For more information on the series please see the Journals and Periodicals section

Addressing the Barriers to Credit Transfer for Students Articulating from Two-year to Four-year Institutions Within the Minnesota State Colleges and Universities Jonathan Gregory Eichten, 2005

Building a Working Policy for Distance Education Connie L. Dillon, 1997-11-30 Distance education offers the potential to further the mission of the community college in significant ways However the practice of education will not change without corresponding changes in our fundamental views of teaching and learning as these are reflected in the total of our state federal and institutional policies In many ways the community college offers other sectors of higher education a vision for the future This issue of New Directions for Community Colleges presents some of the policy issues confronting higher education in the age of distance learning and discusses the implications of these issues for the community college This is the 99th issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Community Colleges For more information on the series please see the Journals and Periodicals section
