Synchrony with the Heavens, Volume 2 Instruments of Mass Calculation David King, 2005-06-01 This is the first investigation of one of the main interests of astronomy in Islamic civilization namely timekeeping by the sun and stars and the regulation of the astronomically defined times of Muslim prayer The study is based on over 500 medieval astronomical manuscripts first identified by the author now preserved in libraries all over the world and originally from the entire Islamic world from the Maghrib to Central Asia and the Yemen The materials presented provide new insights into the early development of the prayer ritual in Islam They also call into question the popular notion that religion could not inspire serious scientific activity Only one of the hundreds of astronomical tables discussed here was known in medieval Europe which is one reason why the entire corpus has remained unknown until the present A second volume also to be published by Brill deals with astronomical instruments for timekeeping and other computing devices Astrolabes from Medieval Europe David A. King, 2024-10-28 This is the fourth set of studies in the Variorum series by David King a leading authority on the history of astronomy in Islamic civilization and on medieval astronomical instruments European as well as Islamic The first of the eleven studies collected here deals with medieval instruments in general as precious historical sources The following papers focus on individual astrolabes from the European Middle Ages and early Renaissance that are of singular historical importance Two look at the origins of the simple universal horary quadrant and the complicated universal horary dial navicula The collection concludes with a list of all known medieval European astrolabes ordered chronologically by region Three landmark astrolabes are discussed 1 the earliest known European astrolabe from 10th century Catalonia that milieu in which the astrolabe first became known to Europeans 2 an astrolabe from 14th century Picardy bearing numerals written in monastic ciphers as well as a later dedication mentioning two friends of Erasmus 3 the splendid astrolabe presented in 1462 by the German astronomer Regiomontanus to his patron Cardinal Bessarion with its enigmatic angel and Latin dedication here presented in the context of other astrolabes of similar design from 15th century Vienna Cosmos John North, 2008-07-15 The definitive history of humanity's search to find its place within the universe North charts the history of astronomy and cosmology from the Paleolithic period to the present day The Reception of the Printed Image in the Fifteenth and Sixteenth Centuries Grażyna Jurkowlaniec, Magdalena Herman, 2020-09-01 This book examines the early development of the graphic arts from the perspectives of material things human actors and immaterial representations while broadening the geographic field of inquiry to Central Europe and the British Isles and considering the reception of the prints on other continents The role of human actors proves particularly prominent i.e. the circumstances that informed creators producers owners and beholders motivations and responses Certainly such a complex relationship between things people and images is not an exclusive feature of the pre-modern period's print cultures However the rise of printmaking challenged some established rules in the arts and visual realms and thus provides a fruitful point of departure for further study of the development of the various functions and responses to printed images in the sixteenth century The book will be of interest to

Islamic Astronomy and Geography David A. King, 2022-02-13 This volume of 12 studies mainly published during the past 15 years begins with an overview of the Islamic astronomy covering not only sophisticated mathematical astronomy and instrumentation but also simple folk astronomy and the ways in which astronomy was used in the service of religion It continues with discussions of the importance of Islamic instruments and scientific manuscript illustrations Three studies deal with the regional schools that developed in Islamic astronomy in this case Egypt and the Maghrib Another focuses on a curious astrological table for calculating the length of life of any individual The notion of the world centred on the sacred Kaaba in Mecca inspired both astronomers and proponents of folk astronomy to propose methods for finding the qibla or sacred direction towards the Kaaba their activities are surveyed here The interaction between the mathematical and folk traditions in astronomy is then illustrated by an 11th century text on the qibla in Transoxania The last three studies deal with an account of the geodetic measurements sponsored by the Caliph al Ma'mun in the 9th century a world map in the tradition of the 11th century polymath al-Biruni alas corrupted by careless copying and a table of geographical coordinates from 15th century Egypt
