Gertler, 1991 The increasing globalization of production and the conservative agenda for market led growth are dramatically affecting the life of the average Canadian and the choices made by social and economic policy makers As Daniel Drache Meric Gertler and the contributing authors show the worldwide reorganization of markets poses new challenges for domestic industry while continental trade initiatives threaten the livelihood of Canadian workers and the stability of communities across all regions of the country Environmental quality is similarly at risk from development strategies driven more by possibilities of short term gain from export sales than by attempts to promote long term sustainability      International Competition for Resources C. Competition (RLE International Business) Neil Hood, Jan-Erik Vahlne, 2013-01-04 The main thrust of Part 1 is to give some understanding of the concept of global competition In doing so the chapters rely heavily on industrial studies Part 2 deals with two different aspects of this change viewed from two different perspectives The one is economic and more macro the other political and social and more micro being concerned with the way in which companies have to utilize their various organisational units and integrate information on a fragmented environment into a strategic whole Part 3 deals specifically with technology as the particular segment of the environment which often has the largest impact on future strategies In Part 4 the perspective of global competition is applied at industry country and company levels and it is shown that this perspective adds new dimensions to old problems The final parts address the problem of management in global competition

Global Competition United States. President's Commission on Industrial Competitiveness, 1985 Global Competition or Convergence? Jan Hornát, Lukáš Kindl, 2018-02-01 The dynamics of internal changes in China whether these changes impact its national economy or its political order and distribution of power have imminent influence on its relations with the rest of the world The important and perhaps less treated question vis vis China's rise is how and to what extent do internal changes in China affect its external behavior and thus its relations with the current world hegemon the United States In addition this publication asks what the clash of two politically culturally and economically different internal orders of the US and China will mean for their future interactions in the twenty first century The aim of this publication is not to measure and encompass the entirety of the posed question but rather to provide an incursion into this problem through two specific case studies one focusing on the interactions of two distinct political cultures and the other on the economic geopolitical and ideological interplay of the US and China on the African continent As will be demonstrated incompatible as the two regimes and their respective foreign policies may seem they will not necessarily predestine conflicts in mutual relations As America can well coexist with China even if it does not meet the Western standards of a liberal democracy so does the competition in Africa between these two major powers not have to amount to a zero sum game At the end of the day both countries might meet halfway in their respective political interactions
