Paediatrics and Blood Transfusion C.Th. Smit Sibinga,P.C. Das,J.O. Forfar,2012-12-06 The practice of transfusing blood started at the bedside but over the last few decades blood transfusion has become more and more a laboratory directed discipline The emphasis on serology and laboratory controlled measures has made blood transfusion safer and more effective but laboratory and clinical aspects of the discipline have tended to become increasingly separated As a result of this separation clinical developments in blood transfusion may not have derived full benefit from the knowledge accrued in blood transfusion services Over the last five years the Red Cross Blood Bank Groningen Drenthe has organised yearly symposia with a clinical theme in order to bring blood banks and clinicians closer together Many of the recent major advances in clinical medicine have been based on developments in blood transfusion practice This is certainly true for paediatric medicine For instance in paediatric oncology including leukemia cell separator programmes have made available new forms of support Further blood component therapy has provided an effective means of control in some of the bleeding disorders of children Some of these topics are discussed in this symposium dealing with intensive care Haemolytic disease of the newborn and exchange transfusion are other aspects of intensive care Our purpose in dealing with them was twofold Handbook of
