

The Different Stages of Prostate Cancer

After a patient is diagnosed with prostate cancer, doctors will work to figure out if the cancer has spread, and if it has, how far it has spread. This process is called staging. The stage of a prostate cancer refers to how much cancer is in the body, and it can help determine what treatment method might work best.⁴

STAGES

Tumor occupies one quarter of the prostate (or less), may not be felt during exam

Cancer has not spread to other areas of the body, and it's usually growing slowly at this stage

Cancer cells closely resemble healthy prostate cells

2
The tumor is still only in the prostate, but it could be larger, and the cancer may have a higher risk of growing and spreading

Cancer cells at this stage might also begin to look less like healthy prostate cells

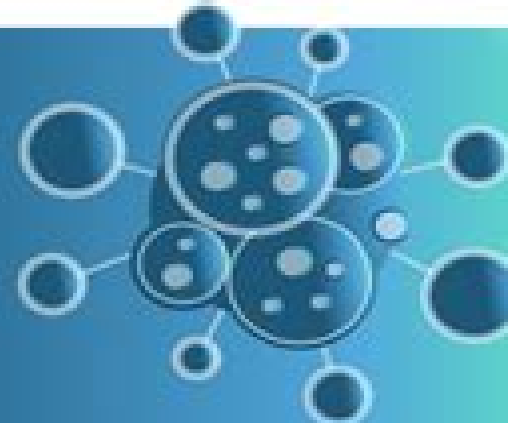

3
The tumor is growing and/or the cancer is high grade

The cancer has now spread outside the prostate into nearby tissues, glands or organs

The cancer cells at this stage look very different from healthy prostate cells

4
The cancer has spread beyond the prostate to other organs or parts of the body
