which years of stalwart independence had developed but these were lovable peculiarities and only severed from remarkable actions by the compelling power of time and his increasing infirmities The loud though pleasant voice and strong often fiery declamatory manner were remnants of the days when his fellow citizens were wholly swayed by the magnificence of his orations Charming simple in manner he still represented with it that old courtesy which made every stranger his guest When moved by righteous indignation there cropped out the daring and domineering insistence of one who had always followed what he considered to be the right and who knew its power Even then old as he was if there were any topic worthy of discussion and his fellow citizens were in danger of going wrong he became an haranguing prophet as it were a local Isaiah or Jeremiah Every gate heard him for he stopped on his rounds in front of each and calling out the inhabitant poured forth such a volume of fact and argument as tended to remove all doubt of what he at least considered right All of this he invariably accompanied by a magnificence of gesture worthy of a great orator A True Patriarch      Satan's Playground Paul J Vanderwood, 2010-04-09 The story of the rise and fall of the gambling industry in Tijuana during the Jazz Age opens into a history of the development of that area and Southern California
