environmental thought Focusing on the international politics surrounding the UN agreement of climate change the Framework Convention on Climate Change and its Kyoto Protocol Glover examines the issue using the key aspects of climate change science global environmental politics and global environmental management Living and Value Frederick Ferre,2001-05-31 Providing a worthy conclusion to Ferr s trilogy on preserving value in a postmodern world Living and Value places ethics into the wider context of religion God and evil and offers postmodern suggestions for environmental technological and political reforms Relational Agency and Environmental Ethics Suvielise Nurmi,2023-04-11 Why does ethics only weakly contribute to the most crucial problems of the current world Relational Agency and Environmental Ethics A Journey Beyond Humanism as We Know It explores how the concept of moral agency embedded in modern humanist ethics in its reliance on environmentally harmful and scientifically implausible presuppositions prevents ethics from efficiently supporting a sustainability transition The modernist individualist notion of agency includes conceptual dichotomies between moral agency and human nature mind and body reason and emotion and knowledge and will yet it should be revised without dismissing responsibility normativity and a shared ground for critical assessment Suvielise Nurmi proposes an agential shift resting on a relational concept of agency combining ecofeminist and evolutionary criticisms of modernism together with various interdisciplinary discussions involving philosophy of mind cognitive science anthropology social ontology and developmental biology and psychology This book argues that the relational shift can resolve the dilemma and bring environmental relationships to the core of ethical discourse there is no ethics distinct from environmental ethics Environmental responsibilities can be justified as responsibilities for one s relationally considered agency

Bioregionalism and Global Ethics Richard Evanoff,2010-09-13 While a number of schools of environmental thought including social ecology ecofeminism ecological Marxism ecoanarchism and bioregionalism have attempted to link social issues to a concern for the environment environmental ethics as an academic discipline has tended to focus more narrowly on ethics related either to changes in personal values or behavior or to the various ways in which nature might be valued What is lacking is a framework in which individual social and environmental concerns can be looked at not in isolation from each other but rather in terms of their interrelationships In this book Evanoff aims to develop just such a philosophical framework one in which ethical questions related to interactions between self society and nature can be discussed across disciplines and from a variety of different perspectives The central problem his study investigates is the extent to which a dichotomized view of the relationship between nature and culture perpetuated in ongoing debates over anthropocentric vs ecocentric approaches to environmental ethics might be overcome through the adoption of a transactional perspective which offers a more dynamic and coevolutionary understanding of how humans interact with their natural environments Unlike anthropocentric approaches to environmental ethics which often privilege human concerns over ecological preservation and some ecocentric approaches which place more emphasis on preserving natural environments than on meeting human needs a transactional approach attempts to create more symbiotic and less conflictual modes of interaction between human cultures and natural environments which allow for the flourishing of both

Green Ethics and Philosophy Julie Newman, 2011-06-28
Covers the moral relationship between humans and their natural environment specifically targeting the contemporary green movement

Deleuze and Environmental Damage Mark Halsey, 2017-05-15
This book offers a post structuralist critique of the problems associated with modernist accounts of environmental harm and regulation Through a notably detailed micro political analysis of forest conflict the author explores the limits of academic commentary on environmental issues and suggests that the traditional variables of political economy race and gender need to be recast in light of four key modalities through which the environment and environmental damage are re produced Focusing on vision speed lexicon and affect the book engages a new ethic for categorizing and regulating nature and challenges criminologists sociologists cultural theorists and others to reconsider what it is possible to say and do about environmental problems

Wrongness, Wisdom, and Wilderness Tal Scriven, 1997-06-12
This surprising work may well change our ideas about what libertarianism is and what it can be Tal Scriven elaborates and defends a libertarian theory of social ethics that can support welfare reverse discrimination and environmental preservationism biocentrism Nietzschean perspectivism and laws requiring good Samaritanism and utilitarianism the social contract theory and legal moralism all at the same time In the process he offers strikingly original analyses of figures as varied as Plato Hume Rousseau Kant Mill Schopenhauer Nietzsche and Dewey The first part of the book articulates a libertarian approach to the ethics of social policy arguing that the principle of utility should be understood in judging social policy through application of the principle of harm or wrongness Part II draws on Plato Nietzsche and Mill to give an account of ideas relevant to moral reflection on individual lives analyzing various theories of prudential wisdom that apply to the private realm of purely personal action Part III deals with our relationship as individuals and societies to nature Scriven argues that nothing logically prevents a well constructed libertarianism from supporting environmental ethics positions at least as radical as biocentrism although he finds deep problems with going as far as ecocentrism and its postmodern variants

Main Currents in Western Environmental Thought P. R. Hay, 2002
Topics covered include the roots of environmental philosophy the development of ecophilosophy deep ecology and ecofeminism how religion relates to environmental values environmentalists writings on science and epistemology animal liberation the role of place the economic dimensions of environmental thought environmental writing in various political traditions and green writers critiques of political movements The work draws from the disciplines of philosophy political science psychology sociology and cultural studies

Each section consists of several authors focusing on one aspect of Callicott's thought, raising questions not only for Callicott but also for anyone affected by environmental issues. A noteworthy feature of the book is Callicott's own response to his critics. Contesting Earth's Future Michael E. Zimmerman, 2023-11-15. Radical ecology typically brings to mind media images of ecological activists standing before loggers' saws, staging anti-nuclear marches, and confronting polluters on the high seas. Yet for more than twenty years the activities of organizations such as the Greens and Earth First have been influenced by a diverse, less publicized group of radical ecological philosophers. It is their work, the philosophical underpinnings of the radical ecological movement, that is the subject of Contesting Earth's Future. The book offers a much needed balanced appraisal of radical ecology's principles, goals, and limitations. Michael Zimmerman critically examines the movement's three major branches: deep ecology, social ecology, and ecofeminism. He also situates radical ecology within the complex cultural and political terrain of the late twentieth century.
