Postoperative Thromboembolism Frequency Etiology Prophylaxis:

Postoperative Thromboembolism David Bergqvist, 2012-12-06 Our knowledge of postoperative thromboembolic complications has increased enormously over the past 2 decades particularly where diagnosis and prophylaxis are concerned. The 125 I fibrinogen method of diagnosing thrombosis has completely changed our concept of the frequency, occurrence and natural course of thrombosis and it has formed the basis of most thromboprophylactic studies. Concurrently with the development of this diagnostic method two methods for the prophylaxis of thrombosis have come into vogue namely low dose heparin and dextran. Both these methods were tested in very extensive studies during the seventies and their value has been unequivocally proved for reducing both the frequency of thrombosis with and without symptoms and the frequency of fatal pulmonary embolism. Thromboprophylaxis is not particularly common in surgery however and its general use is far from uncontested. It has been argued that not only does it complicate surgical activities and make them more expensive but it also involves an unacceptable number of other complications.

Heparin and Related Polysaccharides David A. Lane, I. Björk, Ulf Lindahl, 2013-11-11 This volume is a record of a meeting entitled Heparin and Related Polysaccharides that was held at the Biomedical Center Uppsala Sweden between 16 September 1991. The meeting was hosted by U Lindahl, L Kjellen and I Björk who were helped in their preparations by a scientific advisory panel that included U Abildgaard, B Casu, E Holmer and D Lane. Altogether 230 participants from 18 countries attended the meeting and most were present to be included in a photograph which is to be found at the end of this volume. The selection of presentations for inclusion in the Symposia of the meeting was made on the basis of the known high quality of the work of the individuals or groups involved. This we believe is reflected in the contents of the enclosed articles which collectively give a comprehensive overview of the present state of knowledge of heparin and related compounds. Some of the areas covered are evolving or controversial and the views expressed in each article should be regarded as those of the author(s). The authors have taken various amounts of care to define all their abbreviations and some familiarity with the different forms of nomenclature used in the fields of polysaccharide chemistry and of the coagulation proteinases and their inhibitors will assist the reader.

Haemostasis in Surgery Ruben Canelo, Ruben Hakim Nadey S, Ruben Canelo, Nadey S. Hakim, 2007 This unique volume presents the cutting edge of haemostasis in surgery and includes the advances in the science pertaining to related important medical and surgical problems. It is the only book that includes all the surgical subspecialties focusing specifically on the problems of haemostasis in each field. State of the art laboratory and clinical reviews are included and modern devices used in the different specialties are also covered. The contributors are well known authorities in their special fields and haematological area. Each is covered comprehensively with special emphasis on unanswered questions. The book is addressed to all surgeons and physicians with an interest in this exciting field.
