describes the emergence and nature of the prevailing African political and economic institutions in two periods. In the first, most countries adopted political and economic institutions that funneled significant levels of political and economic power to the political elites usually through one or no party military political systems, inward oriented development policies and or state led and often state owned industrialization. In the second period, most countries adopted institutions that diluted the overarching political and economic power of ruling elites through the adoption of de jure multiparty electoral systems, more outward oriented trade policies and the privatization of many state owned or controlled sectors though significant political and economic power remains in their hands. The choices made in each period were consistent with prevailing ideas on governance and development, the self interests of political elites and the perceived availability of support or autonomy vis vis domestic, regional and international sources of power at the time. This book illustrates how these two region wide shifts in prevailing political and economic institutions and practices of Africa can be linked to two prior global geopolitical realignments: the end of WWII with the ensuing American and Soviet led bipolar system and the end of the Cold War with American primacy. Each period featured changed or newly empowered international and regional leaders with competing national priorities within new intellectual and geopolitical climates altering the opportunities and constraints for African leaders in instituting or maintaining particular political and economic institutions or practices. The economic and political institutions of Africa that emerged did so as a result of a complex mix of contending domestic, regional and international forces, material and intellectual, all which were themselves greatly transformed in the wake of these two global geopolitical realignments.

free writing style and an emphasis on political institutions and behavior rather than on abstract conceptual frameworks make this volume consistently more accessible to readers than most others on comparative politics. It features both across national approach permitting readers to develop a truly comparative understanding of the types of institutions e.g. constitutions executives legislatures political parties etc as well as a country by country approach that examines those institutions within the context of eight different countries enabling readers to see how all the pieces fit together. The volume analyzes comparative political analysis constitutions and ideologies political development and political economics legislatures and legislative structures the executive judiciary and the legal order interest groups political parties and the individual and the political environments of The British French German Japanese Canadian Mexican Nigerian and Russian political systems. For those interested in a comprehensive look at comparative politics.
