Programs for the Handicapped , Subject Guide to Books in Print , 1997 Cancer Survivorship Patricia A. Ganz, 2007-07-28 cancer survivors have increased in number more than threefold over the last 30 years to the current level of 10 million and growing Among patients diagnosed today nearly two thirds are expected to survive 5 or more years This success may be attributed to the expertise of physicians and nurses from multiple disciplines who precisely execute a complex plan based in clinical research Yet after a period of orchestrated and frequent interaction with healthcare professionals bolstered by the attention and encouragement of family and friends the cancer patient may view the end of treatment with anxiety and concern And what exactly is the plan Just as healthcare providers are expected to keep up to date with the latest in treatment and prevention they must now coordinate and provide comprehensive survivor care This significant text organized and edited by Patricia A Ganz and involving the contributions of over 40 distinguished authors provides a greatly needed resource for survivor care today and tomorrow The current attention on cancer survivorship represents a convergence of burgeoning survivor numbers a corpus of data on late treatment effects in children and adults and increased public and professional awareness Dr Ganz and many of the contributors to this comprehensive text pioneered cancer survivorship and they must justifiably be proud that their advocacy and commitment to survivor care and research have resulted in in-depth reports by the President's Cancer Panel several Institute of Medicine studies and this timely text Solve It With supportive care Dyadic Coping: A Collection of Recent Studies Guy Bodenmann, Mariana K. Falconier, Ashley K. Randall, 2019-09-25 Dyadic coping is a concept that has reached increased attention in psychological science within the last 20 years. Dyadic coping conceptualizes the way couples cope with stress together in sharing appraisals of demands, planning together how to deal with the stressors, and engage in supportive or joint dyadic coping. Among the different theories of dyadic coping, the Systemic Transactional Model (STM) Bodenmann 1995, 1997, 2005 has been applied to many studies on couples coping with stress. While a recent meta-analysis shows that dyadic coping is a robust and consistent predictor of relationship satisfaction and couple's functioning in community samples, some studies also reveal the significance of dyadic coping in dealing with psychological disorders (e.g., depression, anxiety) or severe illness (e.g., cancer, diabetes, COPD, etc.). Researchers all over the world build their research on this or other concepts of dyadic coping, and many typically use the Dyadic Coping Inventory (DCI) for assessing dyadic coping. So far, research on dyadic coping has been systematically presented in two books: one written by Revenson, Kayser, Bodenmann in 2005 focussing on emerging perspectives on couples coping; the other by Falconier, Randall, Bodenmann more recently in 2016 addressing intercultural aspects of dyadic coping in African, American, Asian, and European couples. This eBook gives an insight into recent dyadic coping research in different areas and countries.
