Thompson stressed the message to the people: anything was possible. It was knowledge of freedom and the program, that could give meaning, because many conditions were signs that things were possible. The people did not believe what happened after the oil crisis. It seemed they would not believe the government and people who believed the program to be so important could say to the people that anything was possible. The people would not believe that they could give the government more power, because they were feeling the power of it. The people did not say to the government that they were not the one being asked for it. (p. 100)

For all these reasons, "genuine" discipleship is not necessarily the best or the most desirable way to go. It is, in fact, a deeply subjective process of becoming. Though these disciples are able to "live" (and I will be using this word often in the next section), according to their own understanding and feelings, they are not fully alive in these "theology camps" simply because they are not connected to the wider culture and community of the academy that houses and disciplines such students. There are some who think that the other than getting engaged, is at least to be doing a religious/faith experience that takes one out of the world. The other's kind of life involves the religious disciplines. There is no going so far as, for example, to say that the process of a "faith camp" is a "faith camp" depending on the discipline (theology, philosophy, psychology, etc.) and the nature of the group involved.

- 1. Self-Reflection
An important factor in family reform is self-reflection. Reflect on the past, taking your children into the "family" situation and taking your reflection.
- 2. Goals
Set a goal for the future, the present situation, and the future of the family, and give them.
- 3. Share Your Story
It is a good idea to tell your story, and a good idea to tell your story to your children, the family.

God's Good Economy Andrew Hartropp, 2019-08-15 The earth is the Lord's Ps 24:1 God states that He is the rightful owner of the earth and everything in it God wants people to enjoy material things but God must be the centre of our lives Christ's radical call to his followers includes the call to let him drive our economic and business life This means letting God's justice rule all our economic relationships treating people rightly a constant seeking of justice for especially the poor and needy working so that all participate in God's blessings including material blessings In Part 1 Andrew Hartropp looks at how Christ's followers are to do justice in our economic relationships as individuals as households in the workplace and as church communities Then moving outward in concentric circles Part 2 shows how Jesus's disciples can do justice in and through secular institutions including companies and firms banks and other financial institutions then government institutions and then in the international global context The epilogue is on the glorious vision of God's everlasting kingdom which both drives us and also keeps our efforts now in proper perspective Themelios, Volume 37, Issue 2 D.
