Potions Poisons And Panaceas An Ethnobotanical Study Of Montserrat:

Potions, Poisons, and Panaceas David E. Brussell, 1996-12-31 In this complete ethnobotanical study of the flora of the Caribbean island of Montserrat David Eric Brussell provides an engaging scientific catalog that is rich in information about the plants and the integral part they play in Caribbean culture economy history and folklore Including twenty four color plates and fifty two black and white photographs this book contains an exhaustive list of 378 botanical entries featuring 282 species of ethnobotanically important plants and representing seventy eight families Recent eruptions of the Soufriere Hills volcano on Montserrat have made the data collected for this book especially important After summarizing previous botanical research on the flora of Montserrat particularly that conducted by early scientists and explorers Brussell describes his own collecting methodology and looks at the significance of the area s geography climate vegetation and history His extensive catalog of the plants and their uses makes up the major portion of the book The appendix includes a listing of all the collected plants as well as Brussell s field collection records Of particular note is Brussell s investigation of the flora in regard to the Caribbean cultural environment As a result of his assimilation into the culture and his extensive interviews with the West Indian people he was able to observe their myriad uses of the plants in voodoo rituals and practices and as medicines and foodstuffs Some plant species are also used as aphrodisiacs and poisons insecticides and insect repellents dyes building materials and industrial chemicals Many species were collected in the area devastated by the volcano It is still too early to know how many plants can still be found on the island Moreover the deaths of elderly informants each with his or her unique and irreplaceable knowledge of ethnobotanical data have made the information contained in this book all the more precious

An Archaeological History of Montserrat in the West Indies John F. Cherry, Krysta Ryzewski, 2020-02-28

Montserrat is a small island in the Leeward islands of the eastern Caribbean and at present a British Overseas Territory It has suffered greatly in recent times first from the devastations of Hurricane Hugo in 1989 and since 1995 from the still ongoing eruption of the Soufriere Hills volcano that has caused two thirds of the island s population to emigrate and left half the island a dangerous exclusion zone Archaeological research here began only in the late 1970s but work over the past four decades has now made it possible to present an archaeological history of Montserrat from the earliest known traces of human activity on the island about 5 000 years ago to the present This book draws on all the available archaeological evidence including that from the co authors own island wide survey and excavation project since 2010 as well as newly available archival documents to trace this little island s long history and heritage This is not the story of an isolated and remote island Montserrat is shown rather to be a place intricately connected to the flows of people and goods that have travelled between islands and across the Atlantic at various points in time both Amerindian and historical Despite its small size and seeming irrelevance Montserrat has in fact always been networked into regional and global systems of connectivity An underlying theme of this volume is resilience It presents insights from the archaeological and documentary evidence on how the island's inhabitants have coped with often adverse conditions throughout the course of its history hurricanes volcanic eruptions slavery disease invasions and impoverishment all while remaining proudly connected to heritage that celebrates the accomplishments of island residents

Rice and Beans Richard Wilk, Livia Barbosa, 2013-05-09 Rice and Beans is a book about the paradox of local and global On the one hand this is a globe spanning dish a simple source of complete nutrition for billions of people in hundreds of countries On the other hand in every place people insist that rice and beans is a local invention deeply rooted in a particular history and culture How can something so universal also be so particular The authors of this book explore the specific history of the versions of rice and beans beloved and indigenous in cultures from Brazil to West Africa But they also plumb the shared African Native American and European trans Atlantic encounters and exchanges and the contemporary forces of globalization and nation building which combine to make rice and beans a powerful substance and symbol of the relationship between food and culture Harvard Papers in Botany, 2004 Forthcoming Books Rose Arny, 1996-06 Caribbean

Office of Secretary of State, 1998 Publications of the State of Illinois, 1998 New West Indian Guide, 1999 From the Bush Marsha B. Quinlan, 2004 This case study will be the first to deal with a topic in medical anthropology It explores the world of folk medicine in the Caribbean Dominica local beliefs and practices concerning how the body functions and malfunctions and the home remedies Dominicans use to cure common illnesses The case study goes beyond discussing the exotic medical system of a developing country which includes sorcery and folk illnesses to discuss how folk medicine flourishes in industrialized countries in a way that is little different than that practiced in Dominica The theme is that cultural ideas about the body and uses of medicinal plants are deeply intertwined Ideas about illness direct the consequent medical response The book s topic is important because knowledge of local ethnomedical practice is essential for development of public health interventions in non Western settings This realist ethnography is aimed at any member of the generally educated population Changing Ecosystems and Their Services Levente Hufnagel, 2020-03-11 Changing Ecosystems and their Services provides a very interesting account of the frontiers of biodiversity and ecological research It consists of seven chapters covering mass extinctions the Big Five and The Sixth which are recent global ecological crises Caribbean biodiversity acoustic habitat degradation due to shipping in the world s oceans methane production of microbes in Amazonian floodplains African mangrove forests pollination as ecosystem services in Ethiopia and climate change management I am sure that this book will be very useful for everybody researchers teachers students or others interested in the field who would benefit from insight into biodiversity research Ethnobotany, 1997 Aquaphyte, 1998 Endangered Species Update, 1998 Paperbound Books in Print, 1992
