Poverty And Rural Development:

Poverty, Rural Development and Public Policy Amarendra, 1998 Poverty is an age old malaise Is it caused by economic inefficiency or due to social and political exclusions Rural Poverty in Developing Countries Mr. Mahmood Hasan Khan, 2001-03-14 Reviews causes of poverty in rural areas and presents a policy framework for reducing rural poverty including through land reform public works programs access to credit physical and social infrastructure subsidies and transfer of technology Identifies key elements for drafting a policy to reduce rural poverty The State of World Rural Poverty Idriss Jazairy, Mohiuddin Alamgir, Theresa Panuccio, 1992 Despite almost four decades and billions of dollars in development activities we are barely in a position to track the changing dynamics of poverty or to define with conviction the processes that entrap the poor in their misery Accounting for about 90% of global poverty rural poverty through transmigration is also a main contributor to urban poverty It is in the rural areas of the world where poverty is most severe in human terms where the hunger hopelessness hardship and despair commonly associated with entrenched poverty are most pronounced where basic health services sanitation educational opportunities and other common amenities are most lacking The alleviation of rural poverty is therefore tantamount to the alleviation of global poverty in its entirety The State of World Rural Poverty offers the first comprehensive look at the economic conditions and prospects of the world's rural poor

Robert Chambers, 1983 Rural poverty is often unseen or misperceived by outsiders Dr Chambers contends that researchers scientists administrators and fieldworkers rarely appreciate the richness and validity of rural people's knowledge or the hidden nature of rural poverty This is a challenging book for all concerned with rural development as practitioners academics students or researchers

Rural Development Tadlock Cowan, B. Ellington Foote, 2007 In the post World War II era widespread rural poverty most notably among farmers dominated rural policy concerns The Eisenhower Administration's Undersecretary for Agriculture True D Morse began a rural development program in 1955 to assist low income farmers Because agriculture was the major economic activity in many rural areas of the time a focus on farms and farm households became de facto rural policy The war on poverty during the 1960s continued the focus on rural poverty as a central policy issue When agriculture began to decline as rural America's dominant economic activity policy attention shifted to rural revitalisation The 1980s farm financial crisis and economic dislocation in rural America brought the importance of rural structural change to the forefront of policy concerns The further decline of farming to less than 8% of rural employment and the loss of many manufacturing jobs during the past decade have highlighted the growing gap between many rural areas and the Nation's urban suburban areas While no overarching framework guides rural policy at the federal level adequate housing employment creation and business retention human capital concerns poverty issues medical care and infrastructure development remain key foci of federal rural policy

Poverty Alleviation Through Agricultural Projects Emmanuel H. D'Silva, Kaye Bysouth, 1992-01-01 Of the estimated 1 billion people in the developing world who survive in conditions of extreme poverty 70 percent live in Asia The majority of these people live in rural areas and agriculture is their main occupation Most of the rural poor are small and marginal farmers landless agricultural workers fisherfolk artisans female headed households the aged and infirm and children The incidence of poverty is highest among female heads of households and children The seminar on Poverty Alleviation through Agricultural Projects provided thirty development practitioners with an opportunity to consider strategies policies and practices that help alleviate rural poverty The seminar discussed four key issues of relevance to policy makers 1 poverty cannot be measured by income alone 2 poverty cannot be alleviated through a short term piecemeal approach 3 agricultural projects constitute one of the many means available to governments for alleviating rural poverty and 4 the role of public sector in poverty alleviation needs to be reconsidered

Poverty Orientated Agricultural and Rural Development Hartmut Brandt, Uwe Otzen, 2006-12-20 Over the last twenty years the proportion of development cooperation resources earmarked for agricultural development has dwindled to between six and seven per cent of total bi and multilateral Official Development Assistance This is despite the fact that eighty per cent of the world's poor live in rural agricultural areas and that the poor are disproportionately affected when political military and natural events lead to regional or global food shortages Brandt and Otzen's key book fills a gap in current literature undertaking a wide ranging conceptual reorientation of development cooperation criticizing the current orthodoxy and its bias towards urban areas and arguing that in order to effectively alleviate poverty across the world agricultural and rural development measures need to be implemented both by central and subnational governments aid agencies and the private sector The authors investigate the world food question the current pressures it is under and its link to rural poverty and set out the policies that need to be undertaken to reduce global poverty

Rural Poverty, Risk and Development Marcel Fafchamps,1999-01-01

All men and women are subject to risk illness accident death Some shocks affect their ability to feed and support themselves properly either temporarily unemployment crop failure and loss of property or permanently disability and skill obsolescence This report summarises what is known and also what is not known about the sources of risk faced by the rural poor and their coping strategies It examines the impact of risk and risk coping strategies on development and the way in which governments and international organisations can assist in dealing with risk and overcoming poverty

Spatial Growth Patterns Rural Poor in Rich Rural Areas Dorte Verner, 2006 Rural poverty remains a crucial part of the poverty picture in Argentina This paper used a rural dataset collected by the World Bank in 2003 Findings show that extreme income poverty in rural areas reached 39 percent of the people or 200 000 250 000 indigent families These families tend to be large and young and to escape from poverty as they mature and children leave the household life cycle live largely in dispersed areas where basic service provision is often weak and delivery is difficult in particular school attendance beyond 11 years of age falls off very rapidly compared with grouped rural or urban areas and be more likely to be small landholders than landless laborers The structure of poverty in rural Argentina shows that larger households are poorer than smaller households female headed households are poorer than male headed households young households household heads are poorer than older households household heads the poor tend to work more in the informal sector and a greater share of those engaged in agriculture are poor However poverty is by no means strictly an agricultural problem Furthermore the deepest poverty is among the poorly educated and young household heads with children Without interventions to improve their opportunities and assets their plight is likely to worsen Poverty and Rural Development K. Puttaswamaiah, 1989 Papers presented at the seminar on Planners Peasants and Poverty held at Sussex University in 1983 From rural poverty to rural development , 1999 The Assault on World Poverty , 1975 The report provides a detailed analysis of the progress in economic development among less developed countries up to and including 1975 Poverty, Inequality and Rural Development David Greenaway, Tim Lloyd, Oliver Morrissey, 1994-07-12 Poverty alleviation is a major objective of development More than a fifth of the world's population lives in absolute poverty and the majority of the poor live in rural areas This volume studies what can be done for alleviating rural poverty Four chapters address the measurement of poverty and inequality including the use of household expenditure surveys and intra household income distribution Evidence is presented for India Mauritania Cte d Ivoire and China Other chapters present case studies on strategies for rural development provision of rural credit in Bangladesh and India technical change in Philippine agriculture contract farming in Thailand and banana growers in the Windwards The contributions introduce the problems of rural development and show that effective rural development is assisted by investment in education and secure access to credit that equity is important for incentives but not directly related to poverty and that technical and institutional reform are essential but require careful design and implementation Challenging Rural Poverty Organization for Social Science Research in Eastern Africa.
