9780077433130 Power and Choice W. Phillips Shively, 1987-01-01 Teaching Political Science to Undergraduates Laure Paquette, 2016-01-15 By 2020 half of the world's population and most university students will have a supercomputer in their pockets. This revolution will affect the way students respond to higher education. The university classroom must henceforth engage students and the classic lecture format alone might not be enough to do so. This book answers the question how university students can learn in the classroom what they cannot learn in any other way. The answer is inspired by options that are not available to political scientists in the way that they are in the laboratories for the sciences, in the performances for the live arts, and in the studios for visual arts, as well as ideas that are already present but not widespread in the discipline: problem solving and case studies as in the professional schools and simulation exercises in many other disciplines. This book proposes therefore an active pedagogy for political science at a time when active pedagogy is more important than ever. Prof. Laure Paquette, PhD, has been a visiting researcher or professor in 23 countries. She has advised several foreign governments as well as her own Canada and has published extensively in four languages. This is her sixteenth book.

Political Theory and Power Sarah Joseph, 2004 This book draws attention to certain significant changes in the way in which power has been defined and it also examines some of the critical responses which those changes have evoked. The objective is not to try and evolve a universally acceptable and comprehensive definition of power and of related terms like authority and influence. The argument of the book is that that would be an impossible project since social and political theories themselves constitute an intervention into political discourse of a society and they may implicitly or explicitly embody a political perspective.

Routledge Handbook of Comparative Political Institutions Jennifer Gandhi, Rubén Ruiz-Rufino, 2015-04-10 The Routledge Handbook of Comparative Political Institutions HCPI is designed to serve as a comprehensive reference guide to our accumulated knowledge and the cutting edge of scholarship about political institutions in the comparative context. It differs from existing handbooks in that it focuses squarely on institutions but also discusses how they intersect with the study of mass behaviour and explain important outcomes drawing on the perspective of comparative politics. The Handbook is organized into three sections. The first section consisting of six chapters is organized around broad theoretical and empirical challenges affecting the study of institutions. It highlights the major issues that emerge among scholars defining, measuring and analyzing institutions. The second section includes fifteen chapters each of which handles a different substantive institution of importance in comparative politics. This section covers traditional topics such as electoral rules and federalism as well as less conventional but equally important areas including authoritarian institutions, labor market institutions and the military. Each chapter not only provides a summary of our current state of knowledge on the topic but also advances claims that emphasise the research frontier on the topic and that should encourage greater investigation. The final section encompassing seven chapters examines the relationship between institutions and a variety of important outcomes such as political violence, economic performance and voting behavior. The idea is to consider what features of the political, sociological and economic world we understand better because of the scholarly attention to institutions. Featuring contributions from leading researchers in the field from the US, UK, Europe and elsewhere, this Handbook will be of great interest to all students and scholars of political institutions, political behaviour and comparative politics. Jennifer Gandhi is Associate Professor, Department of Political Science, Emory University. Rubén Ruiz-Rufino is Lecturer in International Politics, Department of Political Economy, King's College London.
