Faith with Reason Paul Helm, 2000 Paul Helm presents a new study of the nature of religious faith investigating what makes it reasonable Religious belief needs to meet and sustain philosophical scrutiny just as any other type of belief does nothing about religion purchases immunity from this But at the same time religious epistemology must also respect the contours of religion the distinctiveness of the subject matter of religious belief Helm looks sympathetically at two currently prominent ways of defending the rationality of religious belief Reformed epistemology and the cumulative case for theism He argues that the reasonableness of faith depends not only on beliefs about the world but also on beliefs about oneself for instance about what one wants about one's hopes and fears and on what one is willing to trust Helm goes on to look at the relations between belief and trust and between faith and virtue and concludes with an exploration of one particular type of belief about oneself the belief that one is oneself a believer This is a book for anyone interested in the basis of religious faith

The Reasoning of Unreason John Roberts, 2018-08-23 The twenty first century so far has seen the global rise of authoritarian populism systematic racism and dogmatic metaphysics Even though these events demonstrate the growth of an age of unreason in this original and compelling book John Roberts resists the assumption that such thinking displays an unthinking irrationality or loss of reason instead he asserts that an important feature of modern reactionary politics is that it offers a supposedly convincing integration of the particular and the universal This move is defined by what Roberts calls the reasoning of unreason and has deep roots in the

Sermons: Chiefly on the Theory of Religious Belief Blessed John Henry Newman, Aeterna Press, FEW charges have been more frequently urged by unbelievers against Revealed Religion than that it is hostile to the advance of philosophy and science That it has discouraged the cultivation of literature can never with any plausibility be maintained since it is evident that the studies connected with the history and interpretation of the Scriptures have more than any others led to inquiries into the languages writings and events of ancient times Christianity has always been a learned religion it came into the world as the offspring of an elder system to which it was indebted for much which it contained and which its professors were obliged continually to consult The Pagan philosopher on enrolling himself a member of the Christian Church was invited nay required to betake himself to a line of study almost unknown to the schools of Greece The Jewish books were even written in a language which he did not understand and opened to his view an account of manners and customs very different from those with which he was familiar Aeterna Press Sermons Chiefly on the Theory of Belief James Shergold Boone, 1860
