Second Edition

The diagram illustrates a queueing system. On the left, four horizontal lines represent input sources, each with a yellow arrow pointing towards a central node. From this central node, a single horizontal line extends to the right, passing through a queue represented by a series of vertical bars. After the queue, the line splits into four horizontal lines, each with a yellow arrow pointing towards a set of four ovals on the right, representing output destinations. The entire diagram is rendered in yellow lines on a blue background.
