The Political Economy of European Security Kaija Schilde, 2017-09-14 What is the relationship between private actors and international institutions in global governance as institutions such as the EU develop aspects of political authority once in the sole domain of nation states Important areas of recent EU development have been immigration security and defense policies Are these EU policies the result of strategic imperatives or are they also driven by the political economy of markets Kaija Schilde argues that answers require evaluating the EU in the comparative tradition of the political development of authority Drawing on industry documents interviews interest group data an original survey and comparative political theory The Political Economy of European Security demonstrates that interest groups can change the outcomes of developing political institutions because they provide sources of external capacity which in turn can produce authority over time In this way the EU is like a developing state in its relationship with interest groups

Screening Foreign Direct Investment in the EU Jens Velten, 2022-07-19 Foreign Direct Investment FDI from third countries a desirable form of investment to boost the EU's economy or a threat to important EU and Member State interests that must be mitigated via FDI screening mechanisms FDI screening is a complex controversial and highly topical subject at the intersection of law politics and economics This book analyzes the political rationale behind FDI screening in the EU reveals the legal limitations of current FDI screening mechanisms based on security and public order and identifies legislative options for broader screening mechanisms in accordance with EU and international economic law In particular the book identifies the four main concerns in the EU regarding FDI from third countries distortive competition effects the lack of reciprocity on FDI treatment between the EU and the investor's home country objectives of the investor or their home country that may be detrimental to EU interests and safety of private information On this basis the book analyzes the Screening Regulation Regulation EU 2019/452 and its newly introduced screening ground security or public order and asks whether this and other similar screening grounds based on the notions of security public order and public policy can address these concerns with regard to foreign investors Based on an analysis of WTO law and EU primary law it argues that they cannot Thus the question arises Do the EU and Member States have the flexibility to adopt broader FDI screening mechanisms To answer this question the book examines the freedoms of capital movement and establishment in EU primary law as well as various sources of international economic law such as first and foremost the WTO's General Agreement on Trade in Services but also other bi and plurilateral trade and investment treaties including the EU China Comprehensive Agreement on Investment In closing the book identifies various legislative options for broader FDI screening mechanisms and their shortcomings
