thematic part of this volume of Samuel Beckett Today Aujourd'hui is devoted mainly to Beckett's texts of the forties and later and particularly to those he composed after his adoption of the French language. The essays presented in this part of the current issue attempt to see Beckett as a writer among other authors with whom he connects or competes to examine his relations with artists whether Beckett stimulates them or is stimulated by them and to define his posture and his position in the cultural field. How does the budding francophone writer position himself in the cultural field during his difficult beginnings and after his first successes? How can he be situated in relation to the three cultures he is dealing with? What are the parallels between Beckett's own texts and those of other writers literary and philosophical but also between his work and the work of artists of the period? The ten essays in the free space section of this volume also mainly concern his texts that were first written in French and situate Beckett in relation to different topics from Dante to the War on Terror.

Translation and Modernism Emily O. Wittman, 2023-12-08 This innovative volume extends existing conversations on translation and modernism with an eye toward bringing renewed attention to its ethically complex appropriative nature and the subsequent ways in which modernist translators become co-creators of the materials they translate. Wittman builds on existing work at the intersection of the two fields to offer a more dynamic nuanced and wider lens on translation and modernism. The book draws on scholarship from descriptive translation studies polysystems theory and literary translation to explore modernist translators' appropriation of source texts and their continuous recalibrations of equivalence between source text and translation. Chapters focus on translation projects from a range of writers including Beckett, Garnett, Lawrence, Mansfield, and Rhys with a particular spotlight on how women's translations and women translators' innovations were judged more critically than those of their male counterparts. Taken together, the volume puts forth a fresh perspective on translation and modernism and of the role of the modernist translator as co-creator in the translation process. This book will be of particular interest to scholars in translation studies, modernism, reception theory, and gender studies. Beckett's Dantes Daniela Caselli, 2013-07-19 Beckett's Dantes: Intertextuality in the Fiction and Criticism is the first study in English on the literary relation between Beckett and Dante. It is an innovative reading of Samuel Beckett and Dante's works and a critical engagement with contemporary theories of intertextuality. It is an informative intertextual reading of Beckett's work detecting previously unknown quotations, allusions to, and parodies of Dante in Beckett's fiction and criticism. The volume interprets Dante in the original Italian as it appears in Beckett translating into English all Italian quotations. It benefits from a multilingual approach based on Beckett's published works in English and French and on manuscripts which use English, French, German, and Italian. Through a close reading of Beckett's fiction and criticism, the book will argue that Dante is both assumed as an external source of literary and cultural authority in Beckett's work and also participates in Beckett's texts, sceptical, undermining of authority. Moreover, the book demonstrates that the many references to various Dantes produce Mr. Beckett as the figure of the author responsible for such a remarkably interconnected oeuvre. The book is aimed at the scholarly communities interested in literatures in English literary and critical theory comparative literature and theory French literature and theory and Italian studies Its jargon free style will also attract third year or advanced undergraduate students and postgraduate students as well as those readers interested in the unusual relationship between one of the greatest writers of the twentieth century and the medieval author who stands for the very idea of the Western canon

Theory at the University of Pennsylvania      Proust, Beckett, and Narration James H. Reid, 2003-10-13 This is a comprehensive comparison of the narrative techniques of two of the twentieth century's most important writers of prose. Using a combination of theoretical analysis and close readings of Proust's A la recherche du temps perdu and Beckett's trilogy of novels Molloy, Malone Dies, and The Unnamable, James H. Reid compares the two novelists' use of first person narration in constructing and demystifying fictions of consciousness. Reid focuses on the narrator's search to represent the voice that speaks the novel; a search, he argues, that structures first person narration in the works of both novelists. He examines in detail the significant impact of Proust's writing on Beckett's own work as well as Beckett's subtle reworkings of Proust's themes and strategies. This study is an important contribution to critical literature and offers fresh perspectives on the crucial importance of the Recherche and the trilogy in the context of the twentieth century novel.      On Sympathy Sophie Ratcliffe, 2008-05-15 What happens when we engage with fictional characters? How do our imaginative engagements bear on our actions in the wider world? Moving between the literary and the philosophical, Sophie Ratcliffe considers the ways in which readers feel when they read and how they understand ideas of feeling. On Sympathy uses dramatic monologues based on The Tempest as its focus and broaches questions about fictional belief, morality, and the dynamics between readers, writers, and fictional characters. The book challenges conventionally accepted ideas of literary identification and sympathy and asks why the idea of sympathy has been seen as so important to liberal humanist theories of literary value. Individual chapters on Robert Browning, W. H. Auden, and Samuel Beckett, who all drew on Shakespeare's late play, offer new readings of some major works, while the book's epilogue tackles questions of contemporary sympathy. Ranging from the nineteenth century to the present day, this important new study sets out to clarify and challenge current assumptions about reading and sympathetic belief, shedding new light on the idea and ideal of sympathy, the workings of affect and allusion, and the ethics of reading.

Beckett and Nature Charles Clements, Eleanor Green, James Martell, 2025-07-10 New analyses on the insightful ways in which Beckett's work actively engages with contested notions of Nature and the natural, developing a radical version of modernism's main questions and insights. Beckett and Nature takes its cue from contemporary developments in Beckett scholarship focused on ecocriticism, posthumanism, and the Anthropocene, going beyond them into a questioning of the very concepts of Nature and the natural. It examines one of the most unthought ontological dimensions of literature and life: that symbolic space deemed natural or part of Nature appears necessary and undeniable and therefore impossible to be deconstructed. In doing so, the authors show that in fact this space takes on many shapes, recognizing three natural dimensions criticized by Beckett: bodies, worlds, and literatures. Featuring a wide range of both Beckett's work and Beckett scholars, including Jean Michel Rabat and Stanley E. Gontarski, Beckett and Nature offers contextualized readings of the understandings of nature and the natural throughout his decade-spanning oeuvre. The volume shows that part of the radicality of Beckett's writing is that through a variety of evolving techniques and strategies, it questions what appears in our cultures.
