measures Mohammed Ismail Iqbal,2022-09-01 Well activation is one of the most important aspects in the oil and gas industries and nitrogen gas is predominately used The gas being light is sent down the producing reservoir which will enhance the production or improve the flow of crude oil In addition to the methods used to increase production there are several problems like sand production and water production from the producing wells Sand production occurs when the destabilizing stresses at the formation face exceed the strength of the natural arching tendencies and or grain to grain cementation strength Ideally during oil production the formation should be porous permeable and well consolidated through which hydrocarbons can easily flow into the production wells But sometimes especially during production from unconsolidated sandstone reservoirs the produced hydrocarbons may also carry large amounts of sand into the well bore and sand entering production wells is one of the oldest problems faced by oil companies and one of the toughest to solve These unconsolidated formations may not restrain grain movement and produce sand along with the fluids especially at high rates Water production is also a problem that many reservoir or production engineers face in day to day life As engineers we should be able to decide whether water control solutions should be applied or not The excess production of water is caused by the depletion of the reservoir and simply sweeps away most of the oil that the reservoir can produce This book gives an information how well activation using nitrogen is carried out and how sand control and water control issues can be resolved

Lovelock,2021-08-02 Sand injectites form during shallow crustal deformation Short periods of elevated pore fluid pressure which developed regionally triggered formation of hydrofracture networks into which sand was sometimes injected Sand injection complexes preserve a record of this process and sandstone intrusions are significant reservoirs in many petroleum systems Most known subsurface sand injection complexes are from offshore NW Europe and associated with Paleogene strata Outcrop occurrence is global Sand injection into unconventional host rocks including granitoid and metamorphic basement and coal seams raises awareness of the breadth of geological environments in which sand injection may occur Discordance between sandstone intrusions and sedimentary hosts occurs on a scale from millimetres to kilometres and is a fundamental diagnostic of intrusions Microscale textural characterization provides new opportunities to establish possible additional criteria for differentiating intrusions from depositional sandstone The significance of sand injection complexes in shallow crustal evolution is exemplified by the wide range of lithological hosts and diverse tectonostratigraphic settings documented in this volume Potential for original research still remains Computer Methods and Water Resources III Y.
