Policing the Media David D. Perlmutter, 2000-02-15

Policing the Media is an investigation into one of the paradoxes of the mass media age Issues events and people that we see most on our television screens are often those that we understand the least David Perlmutter examined this issue as it relates to one of the most frequently portrayed groups of people on television police officers Policing the Media is a report on the ethnography of a police department derived from the author's experience riding on patrol with officers and joining the department as a reserve policeman Drawing upon interviews Perlmutter describes the lives and philosophies of street patrol officers He finds that cops hold ambiguous attitudes toward their television characters for much of TV copland is fantastic and unrealistic Moreover the officers perceive that the public's attitudes toward law enforcement and crime are directly influenced by mass media This in turn he suggests influences the way that they themselves behave and perform on the street and that unreal and surreal expectations of them are propagated by television cop shows This cycle of perceptual influence may itself profoundly impact the contemporary criminal justice system on the street in the courts and in the hearts and minds of ordinary people

Globalizing Local Policing David Sausdal, 2023-03-24 The book examines the globalization of local policing through an ethnographic study of the Danish Police Where many studies are looking into how larger inter or transnational policing bodies and policies are changing the world of policing few have gauged how local public police forces are also globalizing This book provides some unique insights into this under researched process Specifically it describes the daily practices and perceptions of two Danish detective task forces tasked with the investigation of organized property crimes committed by foreign nationals In the book readers get to see how the detectives think and work including the many efforts they make in attuning their daily work to a more global reality More so readers get to see how the detectives fail and the many frustrations and concerns that such changes include One the one hand Danish detectives very much understand the need to de localize and develop their work On the other hand they feel that many of these changes are in conflict with what they find to be real and rewarding police work For people interested in contemporary issues of policing the book thus points to a puzzling paradox Globalization might be making for more mobile and even mobilised local forces more technologically driven and collaborating with international partners However these very processes are also making local officers feel more disarmed than ever Ultimately the book describes why that is its consequences as well as how to imagine a form of global policing more in tune with its local actors
