Making Development Sustainable Redefining Institutions Policy And Economics:

Making Development Sustainable Johan Holmberg, 1992-09 Although the idea of sustainable development is by now well established discussions of how to progress from concept to reality often become mired in the complexities of global politics and offer few concrete solutions While achieving sustainable development will undoubtedly require changes at the global level the authors of this book emphasize that patterns of sustainable development must be built from the bottom up They focus on methods for movement toward sustainability that can occur at the grassroots level This book presents an integrated series of essays on the policies for sustainable development from one of the leading policy research institutes for environmental and developmental issues It concentrates on the developing world and looks at the specific sectors to which policies must be applied Beginning with a discussion of what constitutes sustainable development it goes on to examine the institutional measures needed to mobilize human resources for change and the economic policies for sustainable natural resource management It then considers the policies needed in agriculture urban development industry forests drylands energy use finance population and consumption The book ends with a discussion of the potential for financing new policy initiatives and the pressing need to reduce population growth and profligate consumption Throughout it demonstrates how those directly involved are best suited to manage their environments and resources Policies for sustainable development depend upon the experience and resourcefulness of local people and require that they control their own futures

Proceedings of the XIII International Symposium SymOrg 2012: Innovative Management and Business Performance, 2012-06-03 IBSS: Economics: 1993 Vol 42, 1994 This bibliography lists the most important works published in economics in 1993 Renowned for its international coverage and rigorous selection procedures the IBSS provides researchers and librarians with the most comprehensive and scholarly bibliographic service available in the social sciences The IBSS is compiled by the British Library of Political and Economic Science at the London School of Economics one of the world's leading social science institutions Published annually the IBSS is available in four subject areas anthropology economics political science and sociology Sustainable Agriculture in Print, 1997 Sustainable Development as a Civilizational Revolution Artur Pawlowski, 2011-05-24 As a concept sustainable development is in conflict with traditional development based upon economic growth Sustainable development is an attempt to formulate a programme that integrates different aspects ecological social and economical which were usually considered as separate from each other Sustainable Development as a Civilizational Revolution A Multidisciplinary Approach to the Challenges of the 21st Century expands the discussion on sustainable development including ethical technical technological legal and political aspects Since it is not possible to solve environmental problems solely by technical means without taking into account economic or environmental aspects the degree to which they overlap is discussed In addition it is necessary to emphasize the importance of social and moral considerations A clean environment is a valuable attribute but its achievement at the expense of high unemployment or some other form of severe social conflict cannot be regarded as action in line with the sustainable development principle. The tremendous scope of these changes makes it reasonable to expect this new vision for development to achieve the status of a revolution comparable to those known from the past: the agricultural, scientific, and industrial revolutions. Sustainable Development as a Civilizational Revolution: A Multidisciplinary Approach to the Challenges of the 21st Century will be invaluable to graduate and post graduate students following advanced courses on sustainable development, scientists dealing with sustainable development, and academia interested in environmental and social sciences.

A Survey of Sustainable Development Jonathan Harris, Timothy Wise, Kevin Gallagher, Neva R. Goodwin, 2013-04-16 Perpetual economic growth is physically impossible on a planet with finite resources. Many concerned with humanity's future have focused on the concept of sustainable development as an alternative as they seek means of achieving current economic and social goals without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own goals. Sustainable development brings together elements of economics, public policy, sociology, ecology, resource management, and other related areas, and while the term has become quite popular, it is rarely defined and even less often is it understood. A Survey of Sustainable Development addresses that problem by bringing together in a single volume the most important works on sustainable human and economic development. It offers a broad overview of the subject and gives the reader a quick and thorough guide to this highly diffuse topic. The volume offers ten sections on topics including economic and social dimensions of sustainable development, the North-South balance, population and the demographic transition, agriculture and renewable resources, energy and materials use, globalization and corporate responsibility, local and national strategies. Each section is introduced with an essay by one of the volume editors that provides an overview of the subject and a summary of the mainstream literature, followed by two to three page abstracts of the most important articles or book chapters on the topic. A Survey of Sustainable Development is the sixth and final volume in the Frontier Issues of Economic Thought series produced by the Global Development and Environment Institute at Tufts University. Each book brings together the most important articles and book chapters in a frontier area of economics where important new work is being done but has not yet been incorporated into the mainstream of economic study. The book is an essential reference for students and scholars concerned with economics, environmental studies, public policy, and administration, international development, and a broad range of related fields.

Planning for Sustainability Stephen M. Wheeler, 2013-07-18 How can human communities sustain a long-term existence on a small planet? This challenge grows ever more urgent as the threat of global warming increases. Planning for Sustainability presents a wide-ranging, intellectually well-grounded, and accessible introduction to the concept of planning for more sustainable and livable communities. The text explores topics such as how more compact and walkable cities and towns might be created, how local ecosystems can be restored, how social inequalities might be reduced, how greenhouse gas emissions might be lowered, and how more sustainable forms of economic development can be brought about. The second edition has been extensively revised.

and updated throughout including an improved structure with chapters now organized under three sections the nature of sustainable planning issues central to sustainable planning and scales of sustainable planning New material includes greater discussion of climate change urban food systems the relationships between public health and the urban environment and international development Building on past schools of planning theory Planning for Sustainability lays out a sustainability planning framework that pays special attention to the rapidly evolving institutions and power structures of a globalizing world By considering in turn each scale of planning international national regional municipal neighborhood and site and building the book illustrates how sustainability initiatives at different levels can interrelate Only by weaving together planning initiatives and institutions at different scales and by integrating efforts across disciplines can we move towards long term human and ecological well being

Defining Sustainable Development for Our Common Future

Iris Borowy, 2013-12-04 The UN World Commission on Environment and Development chaired by former Norwegian Prime Minister Gro Harlem Brundtland alerted the world to the urgency of making progress toward economic development that could be sustained without depleting natural resources or harming the environment Written by an international group of politicians civil servants and experts on the environment and development the Brundtland Report changed sustainable development from a physical notion to one based on social economic and environmental issues This book positions the Brundtland Commission as a key event within a longer series of international reactions to pressing problems of global poverty and environmental degradation It shows that its report Our Common Future published in 1987 covered much more than its definition of sustainable development as development that meets the needs of the present without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs for which it became best known It also addressed a long list of issues which remain unresolved today The book explores how the work of the Commission juggled contradictory expectations and world views which existed within the Commission and beyond and drew on the concept of sustainable development as a way to reconcile profound differences The result was both an immense success and disappointment Coining an irresistibly simple definition enabled the Brundtland Commission to place sustainability firmly on the international agenda This definition gained acceptability for a potentially divisive concept but it also diverted attention from underlying demands for fundamental political and social changes Meanwhile the central message of the Commission the need to make inconvenient sustainability considerations a part of global politics as much as of everyday life has been side lined The book thus assesses to what extent the Brundtland Commission represented an immense step forward or a missed opportunity

Developing Sustainable Agriculture and Community Lionel J. "Bo" Beaulieu, Jeffrey Jordan, 2014-01-21 This book illustrates the ways in which communities can strengthen the links and set the stage for long term partnerships between sustainable agriculture and sustainable rural community development initiatives It provides lessons learned first from the community development literature that can help shape sustainable agriculture strategies and second from the sustainable agriculture literature that can prove useful in moulding sound and effective community development strategies The threads that weave the chapters together is the commitment to a building and expanding the community capital resources that have important bearing on the sustainability of agriculture and the broader community of which it is a part Certainly the success of the agriculture community partnerships is rooted in one critical ingredient social capital To be effective over the long term sustainable development depends on a network of people drawn from a wide array of interests who have a strong trusting relationship with one another and who are willing to work together in responding to the economic environmental and social challenges facing agriculture and community alike At the same time strategies that work to strengthen the stock of all seven types of community capitals are important to pursue It is balanced investments in all seven types of community capitals that will contribute to the emergence of community agency the ability of local people to act in a proactive manner in managing utilizing and enhancing local resources With the emergence of community agency an important step in the pursuit of a sustainable future for both agriculture and community is possible This book was published as a special issue of Community Development

Environment & Sustainable Development I. Sundar,2006 Sustainable Urban Development Reader Stephen M. Wheeler,Timothy Beatley,2014-10-03 Building on the success of its second edition the third edition of the Sustainable Urban Development Reader provides a generous selection of classic and contemporary readings giving a broad introduction to this topic It begins by tracing the roots of the sustainable development concept in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries before presenting readings on a number of dimensions of the sustainability concept Topics covered include land use and urban design transportation ecological planning and restoration energy and materials use economic development social and environmental justice and green architecture and building All sections have a concise editorial introduction that places the selection in context and suggests further reading Additional sections cover tools for sustainable development international sustainable development visions of sustainable community and case studies from around the world The book also includes educational exercises for individuals university classes or community groups and an extensive list of recommended readings The anthology remains unique in presenting a broad array of classic and contemporary readings in this field each with a concise introduction placing it within the context of this evolving discourse The Sustainable Urban Development Reader presents an authoritative overview of the field using original sources in a highly readable format for university classes in urban studies environmental studies the social sciences and related fields It also makes a wide range of sustainable urban planning related material available to the public in a clear and accessible way forming an indispensable resource for anyone interested in the future of urban environments Beyond the Biophysical Laura German,Joshua J. Ramisch,Ritu Verma,2010-06-19 Beyond the Biophysical provides a broad overview of agriculture and natural resource management NRM scholarship and practice that lies beyond the biophysical emphasizing instead epistemological cultural and political foundations of NRM The volume is oriented toward professionals with expertise in agriculture and natural resource management scholarship and practice but who lack exposure to the conceptual and methodological underpinnings of critical theory the anthropology of development ecological anthropology and other relevant scholarship It therefore follows common standards of academic rigour but minimizes the use of jargon integrates detailed case studies with conceptual syntheses and attempts to move from critique to concrete recommendations for scholarship and practice The volume seeks to foster a more nuanced and responsible engagement with local communities and the natural world among NRM scholars and practitioners

The Sustainable Urban Development Reader Stephen M. Wheeler, Timothy Beatley, 2004 Bringing together classic readings from a wide variety of sources this key book investigates how our cities and towns can become more sustainable Thirty eight selections span issues such as land use planning urban design transportation ecological restoration economic development resource use and equity planning Section introductions outline the major themes whilst the editors introductions to the individual writings explain their interest and significance to wider debates Additional sections present twenty four case studies of real world sustainable urban planning examples sustainability planning exercises and further reading Providing background in theory practical application and vision in a clear accessible format The Sustainable Urban Development Reader is an essential resource for students professionals and indeed anyone interested in the future of urban environments

Public Management and Sustainable Development in Nigeria Robert Dibia, 2018-02-06 This title was first published in 2003 How was public policy and economic development in Nigeria affected under the period of military control between 1966 and 1999 What is the nature and scale of change that Nigeria will have to undergo in order to achieve its current development goals Initially providing a history of Nigeria along with a framework for understanding the nature scope and magnitude of the military and public management problems within the country this timely and rewarding book addresses both of these questions It analyzes the institutions that make and implement public policy in the Nigerian political arena and examines the route that Nigeria could take in order to enhance its public management capacities Although the specific focus is on Nigeria the mode of analysis used is transferable to a wide variety of developing nations The book will foster an understanding among scholars development planners military officers and policy makers of the tasks and challenges facing Nigeria and many sub Saharan African nations in the twenty first century

Ideology, Social Theory, and the Environment William D. Sunderlin, 2003 Does human population growth threaten the environment, or does it guarantee we will safeguard it? Is economic growth the key ecological problem, or is it in fact the solution? What will be the leading force to save the planet: civil society, government, or private enterprise? This book shows that these polemical debates are governed not so much by access to facts as they are by the political ideology of the expert advancing a particular argument. Moreover, the thoughts of these experts tend to be based largely in just one of three competing streams of political thought: the left, the center, or the right. Drawing on social theory, the author explains the philosophical origins of this tendency to rely on just one of three traditions and why this poses a serious obstacle to conceptualizing the cause, nature, and resolution of environmental problems. Sunderlin argues that laying the foundation for a livable world involves giving conscious and dedicated attention to the core tenets of all three political traditions: action against class inequality and advocacy of social justice within and among countries; reformation of laws and policies emanating from the halls of power and technological innovation in centers of research and wholesale cultural change; and promotion of individual initiative, responsibility, and creativity.

Sustainable Tourism Development Anukrati Sharma, 2019-08-05 Exploring the importance of destination branding and destination marketing, as well as their implications on sustainability in tourism, this book approaches the topic through the lens of destination image, taking into account the large influence of appearance on tourist attraction. With consideration to various stakeholders in sustainable tourism development, this book incorporates ideas for new techniques in destination branding and marketing in order to maximize economic impact. The book also discusses the rising influence of social media on tourists' interest. Emphasizing sustainability in tourism development, the chapters address a number of important issues such as post-disaster tourism, marketing culture, and heritage tourism, eco-tourism, community-based nature tourism, community involvement in destination development, benchmarking for destination performance, evaluation, sustainable food practices in tourism, and more. Each chapter of this book incorporates a quantifiable trend in tourism development, including various paradigms and studies that relay different statistics about certain areas of tourism. The book makes use of case studies for specific destinations and integrates strategies, evidence, and analyses to offer a holistic understanding of the myriad factors involved in sustainable tourism.
