India-Africa Economic Relations in the New Global

Economy Rick Rowden, 2025-03-18 While there have been many books about China's growing economic role in Africa this book explores the much less well known story of India's growing economic role in Africa. And like the big debates about China's role in Africa, this book similarly asks if India is acting as a helpful development partner in Africa, an exploitative new colonizer, or if the answer ultimately has to do with the degree of agency exercised by African governments. While the book documents the significant increase in Indian aid, trade and FDI in Africa in the new millennium, it also offers much more. It comprehensively looks at theories of economic development, the debates about the role of trade and industrial policies in economic development strategies, colonial and post colonial literature, and controversial features of today's global political economy as the background to study Africa, and frames Africa-India economic relations in these broad contexts. The book reviews the history of India's diplomacy, trade and investment in African countries since decolonization, with a focus on the increased economic ties of the past two decades. The main question examined is about the longterm impact that India's economic relations are having in African economies, and if India is helping Africa to successfully develop over time or not. The author examines India's economic and strategic interests in the African region, and offers a comparative analysis of Africa's trade with India, China, the European Union, and other African nations. The book also explores a number of outstanding issues in India-Africa relations today, such as Africa's role as a source of oil, gas, and critical minerals needed by India, the lifesaving role of Indian generic medicines across the continent, the nature of the agricultural development model that India is introducing in Africa, and key areas where Indian and African governments are cooperating in the international arena. The book offers a critical and in depth look into the partnerships India has developed with African countries, and contributes to the debate on economic relations between a more developed emerging market like India and less developed countries. A major contribution to the emerging area of South-South economics, this book, part of the Critical Political Economy of South Asia series, will be useful for scholars and researchers of economics, development economics, development studies, public policy, diplomacy, African studies, political economy, South Asian economics, and international politics and trade.

The Diplomatic Making of EU-China Relations Lucie Qian Xia, 2024-04-11. This book provides a novel theoretical framework to understand EU-China diplomatic relations. The existing scholarly literature on EU-China relations is characterised by a dichotomous distinction between material and ideational factors, and overemphasises the interest versus value motif undergirding EU-China relations. The diplomacy and future direction of the relationship seem as opaque as their extent remains incalculably complex. This book takes us beyond binary motives by introducing a novel theoretical model of diplomatic relationship building that brings to the fore the more nuanced and latent factors to make sense of EU-China diplomatic relationship building. The new theory captures the relational nature of diplomatic relationship building by integrating the social layer of intentions in understanding international diplomacy. This study further sheds light on the opportunities and challenges in enhancing EU-China relations through a comparative in depth investigation of the processes, practices and politics of EU-China climate change and agricultural trade relations over the past two decades. The book draws on a rich collection of original data encompassing over 100 interviews with stakeholders of EU China relations conducted from 2015-2023 strengthened by participant observation at EU and Chinese institutional headquarters and in diplomatic fora that has taken place over the past ten years. Enriching these data are newly disclosed official minutes and documentation regarding EU-China negotiations and cooperation. This book will be of much interest to students of diplomacy studies, Chinese politics, EU politics and international relations in general.

Interpreting U.S.-China-Taiwan Relations Xiabing Li, Xiabo Hu, Yang Zhong, 2003-02-27. Interpreting U.S.-China-Taiwan Relations presents an up-to-date multidisciplinary approach to this often troublesome relationship through essays written by experts in the fields of political science, economics, military science, history and communications. It begins with a focus on the relationship between the U.S. and China as China presses forward with new development while the United States encourages a balance of power in East Asia. It evaluates the successes and failures of the relationship and the forces behind the stands that they take that feed the stress of the relationship. The second group of essays deals with the relationship between China and Taiwan. They examine the recent changes and tentativeness surrounding the situation caused by the death of Deng Xiaoping and the social and economic problems of China yet communicate a tremendous optimism that a breakthrough will occur in the future. The final essays explore the evolution of China's perceptions of its international environment as it begins to understand and respond to external circumstances better and more positively.

Overseas Economic Relations and Statehood in Europe, 1860s-1970s Gerold Krozewski, 2023-04-06. Drawing on official archival and published sources, this book explores how the formative history of the European nation-state was embedded within economic globalization and associated with conceptions of the world overseas. With a particular focus on France, Germany, Italy and Britain, this research investigates how overseas relationships shaped state governance. The argument departs from conventional histories by linking together the analysis of economic relationships and political cultures, examining the ways in which state agency formed in different areas such as national economy, building the organization of overseas raw material and food supplies, labour migration and national identity. Spanning over a century, the book discusses the changing role of overseas colonies in European national development. Once a means to complete economic liberalization, colonies were then envisaged as tools of crisis management before, in the mid-twentieth century, complementarities in imperial colonial economies shifted away from empire. This volume covers neglected aspects of the transnational history of European nation-states and is an ideal resource for students and researchers interested in the ties between Europe, Africa and Asia as well as connections between political, economic and social relations and their conceptualizations.

Creating A Memory of Causal Relationships Michael J. Pazzani, 2014-02-25. This book presents a theory of learning new causal relationships by making use of perceived regularities in the environment, general knowledge of causality and existing causal knowledge. Integrating ideas from the psychology of causation and machine learning, the author introduces a new learning procedure called theory-driven learning that uses abstract knowledge of causality to guide the induction process Known as OCCAM the system uses theory driven learning when new experiences conform to common patterns of causal relationships empirical learning to learn from novel experiences and explanation based learning when there is sufficient existing knowledge to explain why a new outcome occurred Together these learning methods construct a hierarchical organized memory of causal relationships As such OCCAM is the first learning system with the ability to acquire via empirical learning the background knowledge required for explanation based learning Please note This program runs on common lisp Social Forces in the Re-Making of Cross-Strait Relations André

Beckershoff,2023-08-11 Adopting a critical political economy perspective this book sheds new light on the social and political struggles that shaped the political dynamics of Taiwan China relations and cross Strait rapprochement between 2008 and 2014 Presenting a careful analysis of primary sources and interviews the book reconstructs the historical political and socio economic factors that shaped Taiwan s path to the Sunflower Movement of 2014 reinterpreting this process as a struggle over Taiwan s role in the global economy It challenges received wisdoms regarding the rise and fall of the rapprochement First the study argues that the rapprochement was not primarily driven by political elites but by capitalist conglomerates within Taiwan which sought a normalisation of economic relations across the Taiwan Strait Second it finds that Taiwan s social movements during that period were not homogeneous but rather struggled to find a common vision that could unite the critics of the rapprochement The insights provided not only offer a deeper understanding of Taiwan s protest cycle between 2008 and 2014 but also serve to recontextualise the political dynamics in post Sunflower Taiwan As such it will appeal to students and scholars of Taiwan Studies East Asian Politics and Social Movement Studies Facing Asia - Japan's Role in the Political and Economic Dynamism of Regional Cooperation Blechinger, Verena,Legewie, Jochen ,2000-05-04

THE RESHAPED ECONOMIC RELATIONS BETWEEN RUSSIA AND TURKEY AFTER WESTERN ECONOMIC SANCTIONS Dilan Günes,2019-07-12 Economic sanctions as a foreign policy tool is used by sender countries to change policy or behavior of a target country The economic sanctions are multilevel phenomena that not only affects both sides of the action but also have implications for third parties reshaping the political and economic relations of the sender and target countries with the other states The effects of the economic sanctions imposed by the West on Russia and Turkey have direct implications for the balance of power in the region and globally Therefore this paper aims to examine how did economic sanctions re shape the economic relations between Russia and Turkey In doing so the paper applies explanatory sequential mixed methods First logarithmic regression model was conducted by time series data over the period ranging from 1992 to 2018 The paper confirms that economic sanctions imposed on target countries that already have trade relations increase the bilateral trade between them especially for Turkish case Subsequently content analysis was conducted reviewing annual data starting from 1992 but mostly focusing on 2014 2018 period The analysis shows that because the sender countries are important trade partners in the target countries to counterbalance the effects of economic sanctions target countries choose to diversify their trade According to the results Russia diversified towards Asia and Central Asia while Turkey increased its trade with the EU which is mutual ally of the US and Turkey Excluding the 2015 plane crisis between Russia and Turkey the Western sanctions imposed on both countries increased the bilateral trade between them However these two countries are the first choice of each other when it comes to trade partner diversification

Energy Relations and Policy Making in Asia Leo Lester, 2016-10-31 This volume goes beyond a conventional analysis of Asia's energy relationships and explores the premise that energy relations in Asia in the 21st century should reinforce mutual interdependence Conventional analyses of international energy relations stress the asymmetric nature of the risks and costs of disruptions to energy flows Energy suppliers net exporters are concerned with the cost of a buyer looking elsewhere energy consumers net importers are preoccupied with the costs associated with an interruption of supply This perspective reflects the current transactional nature of energy relations and is clearly observed in the energy dynamics between countries in the Gulf Cooperation Council GCC and the economies of Northeast Asia NEA As the economies of both the GCC and NEA have enlarged there is under recognized potential for a move away from narrow transactional relations to broader interdependent ones This collection of essays from leading energy strategic and economic policy think tanks focused on how energy relations are forming in the 21st century offers energy scholars and policy makers answers to what these increasingly close relationships mean for international politics and trade
