Regional Economic Outlook, May 2006 International Monetary Fund. Asia and Pacific Dept, 2006-05-01 This report gives the IMF's view of the outlook for Asia identifies the main risks to growth and considers the key factors that will influence capital inflows The REO also hones in on the policy challenges facing the region especially the need to spur domestic demand so that growth becomes more balanced and sustainable and helps reduce the large global current account imbalances Regional Economic Outlook, October 2007, Asia and Pacific International Monetary Fund. Asia and Pacific Dept, 2007-10-15 Economic developments in Asia have been positive so far in 2007 Growth has been stronger and in many cases more balanced than expected across much of the region again led by China and India and inflation pressures remain largely contained Moreover Asia weathered the recent financial turbulence relatively well The outlook is favorable with growth expected to decline only modestly in 2008 as foreign demand for Asia's exports slows The main risk for the region is a sharper than expected global slowdown Regional Economic Outlook, November 2008, Asia and Pacific International Monetary Fund. Asia and Pacific Dept, 2008-11-24 The November 2008 Asia and Pacific REO focuses on the difficult economic environment facing policymakers in the region Chapter 1 provides an overview of the outlook for the region With growth slowing and the global financial crisis increasingly affecting the region macroeconomic and financial policies will need to be proactive Chapter 2 looks more closely at inflation in Asia finding that it is increasingly imported and volatile which raises important questions about monetary policy frameworks in the future Chapter 3 takes a longer term look at how the expected rapid aging of the region may affect capital flows and financial markets in the years to come Pacific Food System

Outlook 2008-2009 Pacific Economic Cooperation Council, 2008 Represents the first regionwide co-ordinated effort to provide the outlook for the Pacific food system The system includes not only production agriculture but also the whole complex of economic relationships and linkages that tie the region's food consumers to producers The goal is to help increase knowledge Regional Economic Outlook, April 2013, Asia and Pacific International Monetary Fund. Asia and Pacific Dept, 2013-04-29 Growth in the Asia Pacific region shows signs of improving as extreme risks emanating from advanced economies have receded and domestic demand remains resilient supported by relatively easy financial conditions and robust labor markets A small and gradual pick up in growth to over 5.4 percent is projected in the course of 2013 Risks to the outlook from within the region such as rising financial imbalances and asset prices in some economies are coming clearer into focus Although Asia's banking and corporate sectors have solid buffers monetary policymakers should stand ready to respond early and decisively to shifting risks and macroprudential measures will also have a role to play In many Asian economies some fiscal consolidation could also rebuild the space needed to respond to future shocks and preempt potential overheating pressures from capital inflows In particular there is a growing need to make tax and spending policies more efficient To sustain high growth rates and alleviate the middle income trap across Emerging Asia the policy agenda will vary by jurisdiction but will also often include strengthening infrastructure investment and reforming goods and labor markets

Regional Economic Outlook, April 2012, Asia and Pacific

International Monetary Fund. Asia and Pacific Dept, 2012-04-27 Barring the realization of downside risks to the global economy growth in the Asia and the Pacific region is expected to gain momentum over the course of 2012 according to this report and now projected at 6 percent in 2012 rising to about 6.2 percent in 2013 Stronger economic and policy fundamentals have helped buffer the region's economies against the global financial crisis by limiting adverse financial market spillovers and ameliorating the impact of deleveraging by European banks but a sharp fall in exports to advanced economies and a reversal of foreign capital flows would have a severe impact on the region The region's policymakers now face the difficult task of calibrating the amount of insurance needed to support stable noninflationary growth Some Asian and Pacific economies can afford to lengthen the pause in the normalization of their macroeconomic policies that was initiated when the global recovery stalled late in 2011 others may need a faster return to more neutral policy stances Similarly the pace of fiscal consolidation should be calibrated to country specific circumstances Additional chapters in the report discuss whether China is rebalancing and the particular challenges facing Asian low income and small island economies Regional Economic Outlook, April 2011, Asia and Pacific

International Monetary Fund. Asia and Pacific Dept, 2011-04-28 The April 2011 issue of the Regional Economic Outlook Asia and Pacific focuses on the policy challenges of managing the next phase of growth after Asia's recovery from the global crisis The analytical chapters discuss how capital flows to the region may affect the monetary policy transmission mechanism and the role of macroprudential measures in this context the implications of the Asian supply chain for rebalancing growth across the region and the policy challenges for Asian low income and Pacific Island countries Economic recovery in Asia as a whole has been rapid 8.3 percent in 2010 and fueled by both exports and domestic demand Looking ahead growth is expected to continue at a more moderate but also more sustainable pace in 2011 and 2012 led by China and India Meanwhile new risks to the outlook have emerged The full human cost and impact on infrastructure of the mid March earthquake and tsunami in Japan remain to be determined The steady response of the Japanese government and people has helped to contain the effects of the disaster on production but a risk remains of prolonged disruptions in production that could spill over to other Asian economies in the regional supply chain Moreover tensions in the Middle East and North Africa and related risk of further oil price spikes could disrupt global growth and affect Asian exports Finally pockets of overheating have emerged in Asia as core inflation and credit growth have accelerated in several Asian economies The need to tighten macroeconomic policy stances has become more pressing than it was six months ago Regional Economic Outlook, October 2009, Asia and Pacific International Monetary Fund. Asia and Pacific Dept, 2009-04-27 Asia has rebounded fast from the depth of the global crisis Initially the region was hit extremely hard with output in most countries shrinking by much more than even those nations at the epicenter of the crisis But starting in February 2009 Asia's economy began to revive Exports and industrial production have increased again financial pressures have eased confidence has largely been restored What explains this remarkable comeback What challenges does the recovery pose to Asian policymakers These are the main questions addressed in the IMF's October 2009 Regional Economic Outlook Asia and Pacific The report discusses the latest developments in Asia examines the prospects for the period ahead and considers the policy steps needed to sustain the recovery and rebalance Asia's medium term growth Published biannually in May and October
