From Studies To Streams Ray C. Rist, Nicoletta Stame, 2006 Recent developments in the area of policy evaluation have focused on new notions of process and use or notably influence But this debate among evaluators on how evaluations are used has been essentially a closed one evaluators talking only among themselves The debate has gone on seemingly oblivious to fundamental changes in the intellectual landscape of public management organizational theory information technology and knowledge management New realities demand a different approach toward evaluation The current era is characterized by the emergence of an increasingly global set of pressures for governments to perform effectively not just efficiently and to demonstrate that their performance is producing desired results Information technology allows enormous quantities of information to be stored sorted analyzed and made available at little or no cost The result for those in the evaluation community is that while individual evaluations are still conducted and reported upon they are a rapidly diminishing source of information In the new environment ever accelerating political and organizational demands and expectations are reframing thinking about the definition of what fundamentally constitutes evaluation and what we understand as its applications In this twelfth volume in the Comparative Policy Evaluation series authors from fourteen nations address these issues from multiple vantage points This latest volume in the series is an essential tool for policymakers government officials and scholars interested in the contemporary status of evaluation Ray C Rist is a senior evaluation officer in the World Bank He has served as university professor at The Johns Hopkins University Cornell University and George Washington University His career has included fifteen years in the U S government in both the Executive and Legislative branches He has authored edited or co edited twenty four books and written over 125 articles Nicoletta Stame teaches social policy at the University La Sapienza Rome She was a co founder and first president of the Italian Evaluation Association Her previous publications include L'esperienza della valutazione resolution interdisciplinary interaction Policy Analysis as Problem Solving Rachel Meltzer,Alex Schwartz,2025-02-03

In Policy Analysis as Problem Solving authors Rachel Meltzer and Alex Schwartz provide a pragmatic yet fresh and original approach to the field. Emphasizing the importance of evidence and sound logic and drawing upon multiple perspectives and methods, the book guides readers through the process of making evidence based decisions about policies. It offers a series of clear and comprehensive discussions about the key elements of the analytical process, beginning with steps to define the problem all the way until analysts arrive at a recommendation. The authors break from traditional approaches in their embrace of analytical flexibility and illustrate a broader framework for thinking about policy, both empowering and equipping readers to marshal a diverse array of evidence techniques and evaluative criteria in their analyses. Case studies threaded throughout the book illustrate the different ways in which problems can be framed and the kinds of policies and criteria that may flow from these alternative framings. Focusing on child support, voter turnout, water shortage and short term rental platforms, they also reveal the challenges and imperfect conditions that analysts encounter in the real world. Bolstered by an expanded scope, updates to its case studies and refinements to its central arguments, the second edition of Policy Analysis as Problem Solving remains an excellent go to resource for students and aspiring analysts in policy analysis and public policy courses.
