Silken Slavery:

Slavery and Sentiment Christine Leveck, 2012-07-03 Illuminates the political dimensions of American and British antislavery texts written by blacks The Silken Thread Robert N. Wiedenmann, J. Ray Fisher, 2021 Insects are seldom mentioned when we discuss human history yet they significantly shaped today's societies In this book entomologists Robert N. Wiedenmann and J. Ray Fisher take readers through the unique stories of five insects that have shaped history: silk moths, rats, fleas, lice, fever, mosquitos, and honey bees Africans of the Diaspora Vincent Bakpetu Thompson, 2000 A study of the evolution and role of African people in the social and political structures of the Americas Particular emphasis is placed on the evolution of leadership within the United States The Spanish Conquest in America and Its Relation to the History of Slavery and to the Government of Colonies Arthur Helps, 1857 The Boyhood and Youth of Napoleon Oscar Browning, 1906

Journal of an Expedition into the Interior of Tropical Australia Thomas Mitchell, 2021-11-12 In Journal of an Expedition into the Interior of Tropical Australia Thomas Mitchell presents a meticulously detailed account of his 1845 expedition offering a vivid portrayal of the Australian landscape, flora, fauna, and the indigenous populations he encounters. Written in an observational and somewhat romantic style characteristic of 19th-century exploration literature, the journal intertwines empirical observations with poetic reflections, rendering it an invaluable historical document. Mitchell's narrative captures not just the terrain but also the spirit of a pivotal moment in Australian colonization, enabling readers to appreciate the profound complexity of the land and its peoples during a transformative era. Thomas Mitchell was a prominent British surveyor and explorer whose scientific inclinations and profound curiosity about the natural world drove him to venture into largely uncharted territories. His experiences as Surveyor General of New South Wales significantly influenced his writing, allowing him to blend rigorous scientific observation with elements of adventure and personal reflection. His expeditions helped map the Australian outback and informed both geographical understanding and colonial policy, making him an important figure in Australia's exploration narrative. This journal is highly recommended for readers interested in colonial history, geography, and the literature of exploration. It not only offers a captivating firsthand account of exploration but also serves as a reflective piece on the intercultural encounters of the time. Mitchell's work is a treasure trove for historians, environmentalists, and enthusiasts of travel literature, providing insights into a rapidly vanishing world. Stories of Torres Vedras John Gideon Millingen, 1839 The English Republic... William James Linton, 1854 The Universal Songster, 1826

The novel begins with Richard Papen, a bright but troubled young man, arriving at Hampden College. Richard is immediately drawn to the group of students who call themselves the Classics Club. The club is led by Henry Winter, a brilliant and charismatic young man. Henry is obsessed with Greek mythology and philosophy, and he quickly draws Richard into his world. The other members of the Classics Club are equally as fascinating. Bunny Corcoran is a wealthy and spoiled young man who is always looking for a good time. Charles Tavis is a quiet and reserved young man who is deeply in love with Henry. Camilla Macaulay is a beautiful and intelligent young woman who is drawn to the power and danger of the Classics Club. The students are all deeply in love with Morrow, and they are willing to do anything to please him. Morrow is a complex and mysterious figure, and he seems to be manipulating the students for his own purposes. As the students become more involved with Morrow, they begin to commit increasingly dangerous acts. The Secret History is a masterful and suspenseful novel that will keep you guessing until the very end. The novel is a warning tale about the dangers of obsession and the power of evil.
