Side-by-Side Survey Susan Alcock, John Cherry, 2016-10-02 Twenty years ago John Cherry looked forward to the day when archaeological survey projects working around the Mediterranean region the Frogs round the pond would begin to compare and synthesize the information they had collected He anticipated researchers tackling big questions of interregional scope in new and interesting ways working at a geographical scale considerably larger than that of the individual survey Was his optimism misplaced Despite the extraordinary growth of interest in field survey projects and regional analysis and despite the developments in survey methodology that have been discussed and implemented in the past two decades few scholars have attempted to use survey data in a comparative mode and to answer the broad scale questions confronting social historians In this volume which is the outcome of an advanced Workshop held at the University of Michigan in 2002 a number of prominent archaeologists return to the question of comparability They discuss the potential benefits of working in a comparative format with evidence from many different Mediterranean survey projects and consider the practical problems that present roadblocks to achieving that objective From mapping and manuring to human settlement and demography environment and culture each addresses different questions often with quite different approaches together they offer a range of perspectives on how to put surveys side by side Contributors include Susan E Alcock John Cherry Jack L Davis Peter Attema Martijn van Leusen James C Wright Robin Osborne David Mattingly T J Wilkinson and Richard E Blanton The Impact on Children's Education Daniel R. Anderson, 1988 Self-Studies of Science Teacher Education Practices Shawn M. Bullock, Tom Russell, 2012-03-21 Part of a vital Springer series on self study practices in teaching and teacher education this collection offers a range of contributions to the topic that embody the reflections of science teacher educators who have applied self study methodology to their own professional development The material recognizes the paradox that lies between classroom science and the education of science teachers the disciplines of science are often perceived as a quest for right answers an unintentional by product of the classroom focus on right answers in student assessment in science In contrast the profession of teaching has few right answers and frequently involves the management of conflicting tensions A dilemma thus arises in science teacher education of how to shift perspectives among student teachers from reductionist to more inclusive attitudes that are open to the mercurial realities of teaching The self studies presented here are unique fresh and stimulating They include the input of a beginning science teacher as well as science teacher educators from a range of backgrounds and varying levels of experience In addition the volume presents a truly international perspective on the issues with authors hailing from five countries Providing analysis at the leading edge of education theory this collection will make fascinating reading for those teaching science as well as those teaching science teachers Politics: An Introduction

Barrie Axford, Gary K. Browning, Richard Huggins, Ben Rosamond, John Turner, 2005-07-15 This textbook has been carefully designed to meet the needs of students taking introductory courses in Politics It is accessible and exciting and by taking the widest possible definition of what is political it offers unrivalled coverage of the subject Specially designed as an interactive text it includes think points exercises and extracts as well as a range of illustrative material to stimulate responses from the reader The authors emphasise the role of the individual in politics and the interplay between the personal the national and the global They introduce topical issues and examples to bring the subject to life Features and benefits of Politics An Introduction Comprehensive includes chapters on political sociology political institutions the state political parties and associations political thought and a whole section on international and global politics User friendly includes marginal comments key words and definitions extensive cross referencing and a glossary Clearly written by a team who are all actively involved in teaching undergraduates and whose enthusiasm for teaching and engaging with students and issues is manifest Encourages further study through imaginative and annotated further reading sections at the ends of chapters and a consolidated bibliography
