Tropical Forests in Prehistory, History, and Modernity Patrick Roberts,2019-01-04 In popular discourse tropical forests are synonymous with nature and wilderness battlegrounds between apparently pristine floral faunal and human communities and the unrelenting industrial and urban powers of the modern world It is rarely publicly understood that the extent of human adaptation to and alteration of tropical forest environments extends across archaeological historical and anthropological timescales This book is the first attempt to bring together evidence for the nature of human interactions with tropical forests on a global scale from the emergence of hominins in the tropical forests of Africa to modern conservation issues Following a review of the natural history and variability of tropical forest ecosystems this book takes a tour of human and human ancestor occupation and use of tropical forest environments through time Far from being pristine primordial ecosystems this book illustrates how our species has inhabited and modified tropical forests from the earliest stages of its evolution While agricultural strategies and vast urban networks emerged in tropical forests long prior to the arrival of European colonial powers and later industrialization this should not be taken as justification for the massive deforestation and biodiversity threats imposed on tropical forest ecosystems in the 21st century Rather such a long term perspective highlights the ongoing challenges of sustainability faced by forager agricultural and urban societies in these environments setting the stage for more integrated approaches to conservation and policy making and the protection of millennia of ecological and cultural heritage bound up in these habitats
