El-Kholy, 2012-12-06 Our planet is under siege Assaults on the atmosphere the greenhouse effect the depletion of the ozone layer and increasing air pollution pose a still unquantified threat to human life The dumping of hazardous wastes and land based sources of pollution present a similar threat to the oceans On land we are destroying a tropical forest the size of Austria every year and more than a hundred species of wild plants and animals are lost forever each day When the General Assembly of the United Nations established UNEP it charged us with reporting on the changing state of the world's environment tracking the underlying causes of change and working with governments to develop responses to those changes Every year since 1974 UNEP has produced a State of the Environment report focusing on one or more emerging environmental issues and always stressing the human factor the impact of environmental quality on people and society Three times since its inception 1982 1987 and 1992 UNEP has undertaken a more wide ranging study The results of the present study are the most disturbing of the three However not all the signs are negative Throughout the 1970s and into the 1980s UNEP was able to report progress in some important areas Environmental monitoring capacity was being rapidly improved in many parts of the world and Ministries of the Environment were being set up in an attempt to deal with environmental threats in a more coherent way Conservation Directory, 1976

Ladle,Robert J. Whittaker,2011-01-11

CONSERVATION BIOGEOGRAPHY The Earth s ecosystems are in the midst of an unprecedented period of change as a result of human action Many habitats have been completely destroyed or divided into tiny fragments others have been transformed through the introduction of new species or the extinction of native plants and animals while anthropogenic climate change now threatens to completely redraw the geographic map of life on this planet The urgent need to understand and prescribe solutions to this complicated and interlinked set of pressing conservation issues has lead to the transformation of the venerable academic discipline of biogeography the study of the geographic distribution of animals and plants The newly emerged sub discipline of conservation biogeography uses the conceptual tools and methods of biogeography to address real world conservation problems and to provide predictions about the fate of key species and ecosystems over the next century This book provides the first comprehensive review of the field in a series of closely interlinked chapters addressing the central issues within this exciting and important subject Remote Sensing for Ecology and Conservation Ned

Horning,Julie A. Robinson,Eleanor J. Sterling,Woody Turner,Sacha Spector,2010-07-01 The work of conservation biology has grown from local studies of single species into a discipline concerned with mapping and managing biodiversity on a global scale Remote sensing using satellite and aerial imaging to measure and map the environment increasingly provides a vital tool for effective collection of the information needed to research and set policy for conservation priorities The perceived complexities of remotely sensed data and analyses have tended to discourage scientists and managers from using this valuable resource This text focuses on making remote sensing tools accessible to a larger audience of non specialists highlighting strengths and limitations while emphasizing the ways that remotely sensed data can be captured and used especially for evaluating human impacts on ecological systems Encyclopedia of the World's Biomes ,2020-06-26

Encyclopedia of the World s Biomes is a unique five volume reference that provides a global synthesis of biomes including the latest science All of the book s chapters follow a common thematic order that spans biodiversity importance principal anthropogenic stressors and trends changing climatic conditions and conservation strategies for maintaining biomes in an increasingly human dominated world This work is a one stop shop that gives users access to up to date informative articles that go deeper in content than any currently available publication Offers students and researchers a one stop shop for information currently only available in scattered or non technical sources Authored and edited by top scientists in the field Concisely written to guide the reader though the topic Includes meaningful illustrations and suggests further reading for those needing more specific information Globalization and New Geographies of Conservation Karl S.

Zimmerer,2006-09-15 Examining the geographical dimensions of environmental management and conservation activities implemented on landscapes worldwide Globalization and New Geographies of Conservation creates a new framework and collects original case studies to explore recent developments in the interaction of humans and their environment Globalization and New Geographies of Conservation makes four important arguments about the recent coupling of conservation and globalization that is reshaping the place of nature in human environmental change First it has led to an unprecedented number of spatial arrangements whose environmental management goals and prescribed activities vary along a spectrum from strict biodiversity protection to sustainable utilization involving agriculture food production and extractive activities Conservation and globalization are also leading by necessity to new scales of management in these activities that rely on environmental science thus shifting the spatial patterning of humans and the environment This interaction results as well in the unprecedented importance of boundaries and borders transnational border issues pose both opportunities and threats to global conservation proposed by organizations and institutions that are themselves international Lastly Globalization and New Geographies of Conservation argues that the local level has been integral to globalization while the regional level is often eclipsed at the peril of the successful implementation of conservation and management programs Bridging the gap between geography and life science Globalization and New Geographies of Conservation will appeal to a broad range of students of the environment conservation planning biodiversity management and development and globalization studies
