Leong,2025-04-22 Does it really matter who one chooses to marry and how one makes a choice as to who to marry or is it basically true that you always marry the wrong person Was Jane Austen right in her portrayals of couples marrying for love for comfort or for both What about arranged marriages Does the one exist How about soulmates Will getting involved in casual sex or hook up culture affect one's chances of eventually realizing happy lifelong monogamy Are promoters of purity culture basically right that their approach will help lead to happy lasting marriages Can there be a way forward through the culture wars Are dating apps any good Virtue ethics is sometimes drawn upon for a dependable approach to couple relationships But what does this approach consist of and which virtues as there are potentially very many should one focus on particularly when navigating dating culture in contemporary contexts What light might theology history and the human sciences including sociology and psychology shed on these matters Rebecca Leong offers findings from wide ranging interdisciplinary studies that address these questions and more in the process developing a five fold ethic and further building blocks for better approaches to dating in contemporary contexts Current Index to Journals in Education

,1985 Premarital Prediction of Marital Quality or Breakup Thomas B. Holman,2005-12-16 This book should be of interest to scholars researchers students and practitioners alike Scholars researchers and students of personal relationship development will recognize in this book the first serious attempt in over 40 years to do a large scale longitudinal study of premarital factors that predict premarital breakup and marital quality they should also appreciate our attempt to develop a theoretical rationale for predicted paths and to test those paths with the best available statistical tools Practitioners while generally not as interested in the intricacies of the statistical results will find much that is useful to them as they help individuals and couples make decisions about their intimate relationships their readiness for marriage and how to increase the probability for marital success Teachers family life educators premarital counselors and clergy will find helpful our principles for practice particularly as described in Chapter 9 as they teach and counsel couples in any premarital situation My interest in the development of relationships from premarital to marital probably began when I got married in 1972 and started to notice all of the characteristics my wife and I brought from our respective families and how our new beginning as a married couple was in many ways the continuation of our premarital relationship only more refined and more intense My professional interest began when I did my doctoral dissertation in 1981 on premarital predictors of early marital satisfaction the results of that study are reported in Chapter 8
