exhibitions displayed within the library or its museum Each library and foundation has a unique partnership Such a relationship however may also lead to difficulties in determining which exhibits are displayed ensuring a balanced portrayal of the President s legacy and differentiating between public and private space at the facilities This report details the legislative history of the Presidential Libraries Act The report then examines information on existing library facilities and their locations organizational characteristics and outreach efforts It also analyzes legislative options for the act including increasing endowment requirements for the library foundations and clearly delineating the relationship between NARA and the libraries supporting organizations Congress for example might consider consolidating the libraries into one centralized location or could attempt to create standards for the historical exhibits at the libraries Windows on the White House
