How Scientific Practices Matter Joseph Rouse, 2002 How can we understand the world as a whole instead of separate natural and human realms Joseph T Rouse proposes an approach to this classic problem based on radical new conceptions of both philosophical naturalism and scientific practice Rouse begins with a detailed critique of modern thought on naturalism from Neurath and Heidegger to Charles Taylor Thomas Kuhn and W V O Quine He identifies two constraints central to a philosophically robust naturalism it must impose no arbitrarily philosophical restrictions on science and it must shun even the most subtle appeals to mysterious or supernatural forces Thus a naturalistic approach requires philosophers to show that their preferred conception of nature is what scientific inquiry discloses and that their conception of scientific understanding is itself intelligible as part of the natural world Finally Rouse draws on feminist science studies and other recent work on causality and discourse to demonstrate the crucial role that closer attention to scientific practice can play in reclaiming naturalism A bold and ambitious book How Scientific Practices Matter seeks to provide a viable yet nontraditional defense of a naturalistic conception of philosophy and science Its daring proposals will spark much discussion and debate among philosophers historians and sociologists of science

Sites of Translation Laura Gonzales, 2018-09-24 Winner of the 2016 Sweetland Digital Rhetoric Collaborative Book Prize Sites of Translation illustrates the intricate rhetorical work that multilingual communicators engage in as they translate information for their communities Blending ethnographic and empirical methods from multiple disciplines Laura Gonzales provides methodological examples of how linguistic diversity can be studied in practice both in and outside the classroom and provides insights into the rhetorical labor that is often unacknowledged and made invisible in multilingual communication Sites of Translation is relevant to researchers and teachers of writing as well as technology designers interested in creating systems pedagogies and platforms that will be more accessible and useful to multilingual audiences Gonzales presents multilingual communication as intellectual labor that should be further valued in both academic and professional spaces and supported by multilingual technologies and pedagogies that center the expertise of linguistically diverse communicators

Material Powers Tony Bennett, Patrick Joyce, 2013-05-13 This edited collection is a major contribution to the current development of a material turn in the social sciences and humanities It does so by exploring new understandings of how power is made up and exercised by examining the role of material infrastructures in the organization of state power and the role of material cultural practices in the organization of colonial forms of governance A diverse range of historical examples is drawn on in illustrating these concerns from the role of territorial engineering projects in seventeenth century France through the development of the postal system in nineteenth century Britain to the relations between the state and road building in contemporary Peru for example The colonial contexts examined are similarly varied ranging from the role of photographic practices in the constitution of colonial power in India and the measurement of the bodies of the colonized in French colonial practices to the part played by the relations between museums and expeditions in the organization of Australian forms of colonial rule These specific concerns are connected to major critical re examination of the limits of the earlier formulations of cultural materialism and the logic of the cultural turn The collection brings together a group of key international scholars whose work has played a leading role in debates in and across the fields of history visual culture studies anthropology geography cultural studies museum studies and literary studies
