Mapping Time And Space How Medieval Mapmakers Viewed Their World:

Mapping Time and Space Evelyn Edson, 1999 Until recently medieval maps were often looked upon as quaint amusing and quite simply wrong By comparison the best examples of modern cartography appear to offer a much more accurate record of the world However as Professor Edson makes clear in this stimulating book when seeking the meaning and purpose of maps in the Middle Ages one cannot assume that they were used for the same purposes or had the same meaning as they do today In fact the differences in structure and content give us an intriguing insight into how medieval mapmakers and readers saw their world By a close study of the context in which the mapmakers produced their work it can be shown that they were often striving to present and make sense of a world picture that naturally incorporated key events from the past at the same time showing a narrative of human spiritual development from the Creation to the Last Judgment From publisher's description

The World Map, 1300-1492 Evelyn Edson, 2007-07-15 A history of the development of world maps during the later medieval period in the centuries leading up to Columbus's journey In the two centuries before Columbus mapmaking was transformed The World Map 1300 1492 investigates this important transitional period of mapmaking Beginning with a 1436 atlas of ten maps produced by Venetian Andrea Bianco Evelyn Edson uses maps of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries to examine how the discoveries of missionaries and merchants affected the content and configuration of world maps She finds that both the makers and users of maps struggled with changes brought about by technological innovation the compass quadrant and astrolabe rediscovery of classical mapmaking approaches and increased travel To reconcile the tensions between the conservative and progressive worldviews mapmakers used a careful blend of the old and the new to depict a world that was changing and growing before their eyes This engaging and informative study reveals how the ingenuity creativity and adaptability of these craftsmen helped pave the way for an age of discovery A comprehensive and complex picture of the changing face of medieval geography With the mastery of a formidable palette of historiographic knowledge and well reasoned discussions of the sources The World Map 1300 1492 will certainly remain an important work to consult for both medieval and early modern scholars for many years to come Ian J Aebel Terrae Incognitae

The World Map, 1300-1492 Evelyn Edson, 2007-05-30 In the two centuries before Columbus mapmaking was transformed The World Map 1300 1492 investigates this important transitional period of mapmaking Beginning with a 1436 atlas of ten maps produced by Venetian Andrea Bianco Evelyn Edson uses maps of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries to examine how the discoveries of missionaries and merchants affected the content and configuration of world maps She finds that both the makers and users of maps struggled with changes brought about by technological innovation the compass quadrant and astrolabe rediscovery of classical mapmaking approaches and increased travel To reconcile the tensions between the conservative and progressive worldviews mapmakers used a careful blend of the old and the new to depict a world that was changing and growing before their eyes This engaging and informative study reveals how the ingenuity creativity and adaptability of these craftsmen helped pave the way for an age of discovery Mapping Medieval Geographies Keith D. Lilley, 2014-01-09 Mapping Medieval Geographies explores the ways in which geographical knowledge ideas and traditions were formed in Europe during the Middle Ages Leading scholars reveal the connections between Islamic Christian Biblical and Classical geographical traditions from Antiquity to the later Middle Ages and Renaissance The book is divided into two parts Part I focuses on the notion of geographical tradition and charts the evolution of celestial and earthly geography in terms of its intellectual visual and textual representations whilst Part II explores geographical imaginations that is to say those imagined geographies that came into being as a result of everyday spatial and spiritual experience Bringing together approaches from art literary studies intellectual history and historical geography this pioneering volume will be essential reading for scholars concerned with visual and textual modes of geographical representation and transmission as well as the spaces and places of knowledge creation and consumption Travel, Time, and Space in the Middle Ages and Early Modern Time Albrecht Classen, 2018-10-22 Research on medieval and early modern travel literature has made great progress which now allows us to take the next step and to analyze the correlations between the individual and space throughout time which contributed essentially to identity formation in many different settings The contributors to this volume engage with a variety of pre modern texts images and other documents related to travel and the individual s self orientation in foreign lands and make an effort to determine the concept of identity within a spatial framework often determined by the meeting of various cultures Moreover objects images and words can also travel and connect people from different worlds through books The volume thus brings together new scholarship focused on the interrelationship of travel space time and individuality which also includes of course women s movement through the larger world whether in concrete terms or through proxy travel via readings Travel here is also examined with respect to craftsmen s activities at various sites artists employment for many different projects all over Europe and elsewhere and in terms of metaphysical experiences catabasis A History of the World in Twelve Maps Jerry Brotton, 2012-09-06 Jerry Brotton is the presenter of the acclaimed BBC4 series Maps Power Plunder and Possession Here he tells the story of our world through maps Throughout history maps have been fundamental in shaping our view of the world and our place in it But far from being purely scientific objects world maps are unavoidably ideological and subjective intimately bound up with the systems of power and authority of particular times and places Mapmakers do not simply represent the world they construct it out of the ideas of their age In this scintillating book Jerry Brotton examines the significance of 12 maps from the mystical representations of ancient history to the satellite derived imagery of today He vividly recreates the environments and circumstances in which each of the maps was made showing how each conveys a highly individual view of the world whether the Jerusalem centred Christian perspective of the 14th century Hereford Mappa Mundi or the Peters projection of the 1970s which aimed to give due weight to the third world Although the way we map our surroundings is once more changing dramatically Brotton argues that maps today are no more definitive or objective than they have ever been but that they continue to make arguments and propositions about the world and to recreate shape and mediate our view of it Readers of this book will never look at a map in quite the same way again

Cartography in Antiquity and the Middle Ages, 2008-08-31 In scope this book matches The History of Cartography vol 1 1987 edited by Brian Harley and David Woodward Now twenty years after the appearance of that seminal work classicists and medievalists from Europe and North America highlight distill and reflect on the remarkably productive progress made since in many different areas of the study of maps The interaction between experts on antiquity and on the Middle Ages evident in the thirteen contributions offers a guide to the future and illustrates close relationships in the evolving practice of cartography over the first millennium and a half of the Christian era Contributors are Emily Albu Raymond Clemens Lucy Donkin Evelyn Edson Tom Elliott Patrick Gauthier Dalch Benjamin Kedar Maja Kominko Natalia Lozovsky Yossef Rapoport Emilie Savage Smith Camille Serchuk Richard Talbert and Jennifer Trimble Space Emma Gilby, Katja Haustein, 2005 This book which is the fruit of papers presented at the seventh Cambridge French Graduate Conference offers innovative analyses of how space can provide metaphors for human thoughts utterances and experiences The authors cross fertilise different approaches to the significance of space as a thematic and structuring principle in French and Francophone poetry prose philosophy and film They are interested in three broad areas of enquiry how spaces can be suffused with explorations of identity how the dividing work done by maps marks and makes spaces and how particular questions are thrown up by urban spaces Throughout the book examines the symbiotic relationship between internal and external between delimitation and difference

Maps of Paradise Alessandro Scafi, 2014-02-15 Where is paradise It always seems to be elsewhere inaccessible outside of time Either it existed yesterday or it will return tomorrow it may be just around the corner on a remote island beyond the sea Across a wide range of cultures paradise is located in the distant past in a longed for future in remote places or within each of us In particular people everywhere in the world share some kind of nostalgia for an innocence experienced at the beginning of history For two millennia learned Christians have wondered where on earth the primal paradise could have been located Where was the idyllic Garden of Eden that is described in the Bible In the Far East In equatorial Africa In Mesopotamia Under the sea Where were Adam and Eve created in their unspoiled perfection Maps of Paradise charts the diverse ways in which scholars and mapmakers from the eighth to the twenty first century rose to the challenge of identifying the location of paradise on a map despite the certain knowledge that it was beyond human reach Over one hundred illustrations celebrate this history of a paradox the mapping of the unmappable It is also a mirror to the universal dream of perfection and happiness and the yearning to discover heaven on earth
