Vijandra Vashis, 2002 Between Truth and Falsity: Liberal Education and the Arts of Discernment Karim Dharamsi, David Ohreen, 2021-04-06 It seems we are awash in information From the moment we wake until we turn over our phones at night we are bombarded with images and messages news and information from a confounding number of sources But as the amount of information available to us increases ever more rapidly its quality and reliability seem less credible Russian troll bots 4chan Breitbart and Rebel Media challenge our credulity but they do so by mimicking aesthetic registers consumers expect of traditional media outlets Moreover traditional news sources both privately owned and public broadcasters already weakened by eroding revenue cuts to budgets and shifting demographics are under sustained attack from those who wish to damage their ability to hold powerful people to account Instead of a multi perspectival approach which seeks to report to the public the many ways to address a particular issue taking the reporter's role as neutral with regard to outcome fake or ideologically driven news sources compete for audience attention and faithfulness often using emotion to rally people toward a certain political cause or issue Academics meanwhile have their work attacked and undermined by people or groups seeking to advance political or economic interests They are told they too are political actors one more voice in a messy public arena instead of a font of reliable information and knowledge While academics continue to believe that their work at least in part enhances our understanding of the world and informs debate how do we know that their conclusions are indeed more reliable than their critics in the post truth era Between Truth and Falsity Liberal Education and the Arts of Discernment will aid academics and students seeking to better grasp the value of liberal education within this post truth era It seeks to advance pedagogical ideas in order to fight factual erosion and reinforce intellectual capacities that are able to critically assess the chaos of information enveloping all segments of society This volume will therefore be of particular interest to academics and university educators working in higher education graduate students theorizing the nature of media and the role of higher education undergraduates studying liberal education and the nature of the university and those thinking about liberal education The Strategic Management of Higher Education Institutions Hamid Kazeroony, 2012-01-13 If you are a professional interested in reorganizing or restructuring your higher education or postsecondary institutions you'll need this book Inside the author smartly examines the needs of learners in the 21st century the rise of for profit higher education institutions and the technological innovations impacting postsecondary education Kazeroony provides examples of administrative processes and how to satisfy regulatory agencies standards to take advantage of a particular marketing niche for attracting students He addresses the changing environment of higher education the administrative structure challenges and the requirements for successful execution of start up operations or changing strategies for existing institutions as well as provides a summary of findings and additional recommendations

Globalization and Education Nelly P. Making the World Global Isaac A. Kamola, 2019-06-07 Following World War II the American government and philanthropic foundations fundamentally remade American universities into sites for producing knowledge about the world as a collection of distinct nation states As neoliberal reforms took hold in the 1980s visions of the world made popular within area studies and international studies found themselves challenged by ideas and educational policies that originated in business schools and international financial institutions Academics within these institutions reimagined the world instead as a single global market and higher education as a commodity to be bought and sold By the 1990s American universities embraced this language of globalization and globalization eventually became the organizing logic of higher education In Making the World Global Isaac A Kamola examines how the relationships among universities the American state philanthropic organizations and international financial institutions created the conditions that made it possible to imagine the world as global Examining the Center for International Studies Harvard Business School the World Bank the Social Science Research Council and NYU Kamola demonstrates that how we imagine the world is always symptomatic of the material relations within which knowledge is produced Small Business Tax Reform United States. Congress. Senate. Select Committee on Small Business, 1975 Tax Policy and Capital Formation United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Finance. Subcommittee on Financial Markets, 1976 CIO, 1991-10-15 Still Living Together Institute for Research on Public Policy, 1987 The Economics of Education John Sheehan, 2012 This book is a survey of the principal aspects of the economics of education such as the demand for education as consumption and as an investment good education and economic growth education and manpower needs and the finance of education In some cases in recent years economic theory has been applied to educational problems in order to gain an insight into the workings of the educational system The result has been a certain amount of confusion and distrust among teachers and educationists confusion because some theoretical aspects are not easily understood and distrust of the economist's intrusion into educational policy making This book overcomes these problems by making minimal demands on prior knowledge of economics and by emphasizing the limitations of economic analysis applied to policy matters

The Return to Firm Investment in Human Capital Rita Almeida, Pedro Carneiro, 2006 In this paper the authors estimate the rate of return to firm investments in human capital in the form of formal job training They use a panel of large firms with unusually detailed information on the duration of training the direct costs of training and several firm characteristics such as their output workforce characteristics and capital stock Their estimates of the return to training vary substantially across firms On average it is 7 percent for firms not providing training and 24 percent for those providing training Formal job training is a good investment for many firms and the economy possibly yielding higher returns than either investments in physical capital or investments in schooling In spite of this observed amounts of formal training are small

The Political Economy of Education Martin Carnoy, 2024-02-15 The Political Economy of Education provides academically rigorous yet clear explanations of the economics and politics driving today's educational systems and how economists analyze them The book covers a host of topics central to teaching about education and crucial to educational policy These include how to use the tools of economic and political theory to take critical measure of education's role in social mobility and economic growth whether good teachers can overcome social class and race achievement gaps the effectiveness of early childhood and vocational education and debates on school accountability and whether increasing spending on schooling improves quality The book also explores worldwide changes in higher education especially massification and increased stratification and privatization Written for upper undergraduate and graduate students in economics public policy and education and packed with real world examples this is an essential text for anyone interested in gaining fresh and international perspectives on education
