Mappa Mundi:

Mappa Mundi P. D. A. Harvey, 1996 The Mappa Mundi arguably the most famous of all medieval world maps is now displayed in Hereford Cathedral This book was commissioned to mark the map's display in a newly built museum and the map is here seen in context with other detailed maps of the 12th to the 14th centuries at that period these were a peculiarly English genre on which recent discoveries have thrown new light The map's origins are examined as well as the sources for its geographical outlines and for the wealth of information it provides This account intended for a general audience is of one of the most revealing artefacts surviving from the 13th century The book includes new photography of the map itself The Hereford Mappa Mundi Gabriel Alington, 1996 Mappa Mundi, 2010 Mappa Mundi Dennis Phillips, 2019-09-15 Poetry Like the medieval maps from which MAPPA MUNDI takes its title Dennis Phillips 16th volume of poetry is a survey of territory as subjective as it is tangible Riffing off the unstable certainty of medieval world maps MAPPA MUNDI builds on refracts distills distorts and reexamines Phillips past works and recurring themes relying on among other techniques repeated motifs narrative tensions and lyrical condensations Its three parts charting the key elements of city desert and islands MAPPA MUNDI sets a predicate to be expanded in its sequel The Cartographer's Lament Mappa Mundi, 1996

Fra Mauro's Mappa Mundi and Fifteenth-century Venetian Culture Angelo Cattaneo, 2011 Fra Mauro's mappamundi drawn around 1450 in the monastery of San Michele on Murano in the lagoon of Venice is among the most relevant compendia of knowledge of the Earth and the Cosmos of the fifteenth century By examining literary visual textual and archival evidences some long considered lost this book places the map within the larger context of Venetian culture in the fifteenth century It provides a detailed analysis of both its main sources auctores veteres such as Pliny Solinus Ptolemy and novi like Albert the Great Thomas Aquinas Marco Polo and Niccolo de Conti as well as of the composite networks of contemporary knowledge scholasticism humanism monastic culture as well as more technical skills such as marine cartography and mercantile practices investigating the way they combine in the epistemological unity of the imago mundi More a work on intellectual history than cartography the book constructs a complex set of frameworks within which to situate Fra Mauro's monumental effort These range from the cultural history of the reception of the world map from the fifteenth to the nineteenth centuries to the analysis of the material conditions under which map makers such as Fra Mauro worked from the history of ideas especially of natural philosophy to the links between world representations and travel literature It also addresses the Venetian reception of Ptolemy's Geography the interactions between Venetian art theology and cosmography and the complexities of the Venetian vernacular The book develops a multi-tiered approach in which different elements of the rich cultural context in which this world map was created interact with each other each casting a new light on the encyclopaedic work being analyzed The Hereford World Map P. D. A. Harvey, 2006 The famous Hereford world map the Mappa Mundi dates from around 1300 and was painted on one skin of calf parchment In setting the

Hereford world map in context Harvey and his 24 collaborators introduce us to medieval ideas of the world and man's place in it

The World Map, 1300-1492 Evelyn Edson, 2007-05-30 In the two centuries before Columbus mapmaking was transformed The World Map 1300 1492 investigates this important transitional period of mapmaking Beginning with a 1436 atlas of ten maps produced by Venetian Andrea Bianco Evelyn Edson uses maps of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries to examine how the discoveries of missionaries and merchants affected the content and configuration of world maps She finds that both the makers and users of maps struggled with changes brought about by technological innovation the compass quadrant and astrolabe rediscovery of classical mapmaking approaches and increased travel To reconcile the tensions between the conservative and progressive worldviews mapmakers used a careful blend of the old and the new to depict a world that was changing and growing before their eyes This engaging and informative study reveals how the ingenuity creativity and adaptability of these craftsmen helped pave the way for an age of discovery Mappa Mundi Sarah
