Mapping It Out Expository Cartography For The Humanities And Social Sciences:

Mapping It Out Mark S. Monmonier, 1993-06 Writers know only too well how long it can take and how awkward it can be to describe spatial relationships with words alone And while a map might not always be worth a thousand words a good one can help writers communicate an argument or explanation clearly succinctly and effectively In his acclaimed How to Lie with Maps Mark Monmonier showed how maps can distort facts In Mapping it Out Expository Cartography for the Humanities and Social Sciences he shows authors and scholars how they can use expository cartography the visual two dimensional organization of information to heighten the impact of their books and articles This concise practical book is an introduction to the fundamental principles of graphic logic and design from the basics of scale to the complex mapping of movement or change Monmonier helps writers and researchers decide when maps are most useful and what formats work best in a wide range of subject areas from literary criticism to sociology He demonstrates for example various techniques for representing changes and patterns different typefaces and how they can either clarify or confuse information and the effectiveness of less traditional map forms such as visibility base maps frame rectangle symbols and complementary scatterplot designs for conveying complex spatial relationships There is also a wealth of practical information on map compilation cartobibliographies copyright and permissions facsimile reproduction and the evaluation of source materials Appendixes discuss the benefits and limitations of electronic graphics and pen and ink drafting and how to work with a cartographic illustrator Clearly written and filled with real world examples Mapping it Out demystifies mapmaking for anyone writing in the humanities and social sciences A useful guide to a subject most people probably take too much for granted It shows how map makers translate abstract data into eye catching cartograms as they are called It combats cartographic illiteracy It fights cartophobia It may even teach you to find your way Christopher Lehmann Haupt The New York Times Mapping Daniel Dorling, David Fairbairn, 2013-10-08 Illustrates how maps tell us as much about the people and the powers which create them as about the places they show Presents historical and contemporary evidence of how the human urge to describe understand and control the world is presented through the medium of mapping together with the individual and environmental constraints of the creator of the map The World of Maps Judith A. Tyner, 2014-01-01 Maps have power they can instruct make life easier mislead or even lie This engaging text provides the tools to read analyze and use any kind of map and assess its strengths and weaknesses Requiring no advanced math skills the book presents basic concepts of symbolization scale coordinate systems and projections It gives students a deeper understanding of the types of maps they encounter every day from turn by turn driving directions to the TV weather report Readers also learn how to use multiple maps and imagery to analyze an area or region The book includes 168 figures among them 22 color plates most of the figures can be downloaded as PowerPoint slides from the companion website Appendixes contain a glossary recommended resources a table of commonly used projections and more Principles of Map Design Judith A. Carlson,Damian Walford Davies,2020-12-10 Romantic Cartographies is the first collection to explore the Social Regionalism in the Global Economy Adelle Blackett, Christian Lévesque, 2010-12-20 Regional trade agreements have expanded exponentially over the past decade and have become a significant if controversial factor in the expanse of economic globalization Social Regionalism in the Global Economy attempts to take a fresh interdisciplinary approach to addressing labour regulation by drawing upon insights from industrial relations comparative capitalism and new governance schools of thought It stands for the proposition that an interdisciplinary study of regional regulation holds the potential to offer a fuller account of social regionalism Its focus is to consider how institutions and labour market actors reconstruct and renegotiate regulatory space in a changing economic environment characterized by regional impulses It argues that there is a dynamic interplay between institutions and actors of social regulation This interplay occurs at many levels The book therefore maps both how actors shape institutions as well as how institutions shape social actors ability to affect regulatory processes The editors bring together leading international specialists willing to move beyond textual analyses of regional agreements to offer alternative accounts of regional integration The work emphasizes that institutional context and social actors at multiple governance levels are integral to the progressive construction and regulation of regional space It further contributes to the literature by combining insights from overlooked regional entities in transition and developing countries with original analyses from the European Union and the
