Novak, J. Donald Woodruff, 1967 Pathology of the Female Genital Tract A. Blaustein, 2013-06-29 This text is written for the obstetrician gynecologist pathologist and for residents training in these disciplines It is a multi authored book and the editor is aware of the problems this can create but the expansion of information in the field of gynecologic pathology renders single authorship obsolete The format is largely traditional but the contents include topics that have not appeared in past texts Clear cell adenocarcinoma of the vagina and vaginal and cervical adenoses are discussed in detail in a separate chapter A chapter on embryology and congenital anomalies is written by an embryologist and the advantage of its inclusion is self evident Ovarian neoplasms in childhood and adolescence are fortunately rare occurrences but information concerning them is generally not readily available in existing texts It is of sufficient importance to deserve a separate chapter Amniotic fluid analysis for fetal viability is now commonly used and for this reason a detailed discussion of this subject is presented A chapter is included on gross description and preparation of gynecologic specimens It contains the input and review of several directors of gynecologic pathology laboratories

Campbell, 2012-12-06 Despite the fact that the average woman spends one third of her life after the menopause medical research has been devoted almost entirely to the reproductive period of her life span This is perhaps not surprising in our youth orientated society and yet there is increasing evidence that properly applied and supervised hormonal therapy could alleviate many of the severe physical symptoms which are associated with the ovarian menopause and that in the long term other aspects of physical deterioration could be modified This lack of scientific research has made it difficult to assess which symptoms are due to the altered hormonal status of the post menopausal period and which are due to the normal process of ageing or the various psychological pressures which build up around most women in the fourth and fifth decades of life In America doctors have been treating the menopausal syndrome with estrogens for over 30 years but in the United Kingdom gynaecologists and family doctors have been reticent to prescribe these steroid preparations As a consequence they have been labelled reactionary by the media and while there may be some truth in this it should be remembered that the hazards associated with synthetic estrogens in the contraceptive pill were first brought to light by British epidemiological surveys
