Russian Strategic Modernization N. N. Sokov, 2000 This invaluable study provides a unique insider's view of the history of Soviet and Russian policy on nuclear weapons modernization and charts the future evolution of the Russian strategic arsenal Using information that has only recently become available and introducing new previously unknown data Sokov concludes that the most important force behind the evolution of the Soviet and Russian strategic arsenal was the military itself which sought to increase strategic stability by enhancing the survivability of weapons systems The highly destabilizing posture of the 1970s and 1980s was he argues in a sense accidental resulting from the failure of several R D programs and specific features of the Soviet decisionmaking mechanism The author demonstrates that the role of such factors as the economic crisis U S modernization programs and general Russian foreign policy goals has been exaggerated by Western analysts No matter how hard pressed Russia will hold to its current plans Sokov argues At the same time the military will be unlikely to engage in a new arms buildup even if the economic situation improves or a nationalist government comes to power Instead stability will be sought through better quality of weapons at progressively lower levels Introducing a wealth of new information on Soviet and Russian national security policymaking the author explores in meticulous detail such key issues as decisions on weapons development arms control negotiations and the handling of the Soviet nuclear arsenal after the breakup of the Soviet Union
