Wasting the Rain (Routledge Revivals) William M. Adams Adams, 2014-05-01 First published in 1992 this title offers an experienced and constructive evaluation of the ways in which water resources have been developed in Africa Adams argues that the best hope of productive development lies in working and engaging with local people and using local knowledge of the environment effectively Modern large scale developments that have largely been ineffective are examined and emphasis is placed on the importance of using the skills and concerns of those affected such as small farmers to develop ingenious water projects an approach that can be applied worldwide This is an interesting and relevant title which will be of particular value to those with an interest in the developments in water resource conservation over the past two decades

International Development Governance Ahmed Shafiqul Huque, Habib Zafarullah, 2017-09-25 The establishment of good governance is a major challenge for the developing world along with the need to sustain the progress resulting from developmental efforts Although there are numerous studies on the development and governance of emerging nations few volumes make a serious effort to bring together these two critical concepts International Development Governance combines the two concepts development and governance by examining the issues and problems faced by nations in their attempts to establish sustainable governance This textbook also initiates discussions on the concept of development governance in an international context The book fills the gap in existing literature by drawing upon the experience and expertise of scholars from a broad spectrum of knowledge Their views explain the issues and problems with reference to a number of tools that could establish development governance and sustain it The text offers in depth examinations of developmental sectors resulting in a textbook that will inspire future public officials policy makers and consultants to contribute to the betterment of life for citizens of developing countries

Development and the Environmental Crisis Michael Redclift, 2010-11-26 First published in 1984 Michael Redclift s book makes the global environmental crisis a central concern of political economy and its structural causes a central concern of environmentalism Michael Redclift argues that a close analysis of the environmental crisis in the South reveals the importance of the share of resources obtained by different social groups The development strategies based on the experiences and interests of Western capitalist countries fail to recognise that environmental degradation in the South is a product of inequalities in both global and local economic relations and cannot be solved simply by applying solutions borrowed from environmentalism in the North The key to understanding the South s environmental problems lies in the recognition that structural processes markets technology state intervention are also a determining influence upon the way natural resources are used Through his review of Europe s Green Movement contemporary breakthroughs in biotechnology and information systems and recent feminist discourse Michael Redclift has enlarged the compass of the environmental debate and produced a book which should serve as a benchmark in future discussions of development and the environment It will be of importance to students in a range of disciplines within development studies geography ecology and the social sciences

Room for Manoeuvre Edward J. Environmental Reconstruction in Headwater Areas Martin F. Bach, Josef Krecek, 2012-12-06 These proceedings of a NATO Advanced Research Workshop on Environmental Reconstruction in

Headwater Areas provide a landmark in the evolution of a distinctive movement perhaps an emerging new philosophy within the practice of headwater management The Headwater Control movement traces its history back to the First International Conference on Headwater Control Prague 1989 Throughout this brief history Headwater Control has remained a typical environment movement ad hoc At its meetings for every convert to the multidisciplinary integrative practical interventionist and above all green ideals of the group there have been several delegates who have found the whole concept both new and slightly incomprehensible One reason for this has been the Headwater Control practice of trying to bring together scientists practitioners policy makers and non government environmentalist organisations The group's larger meetings have always been federal gatherings Sponsorship has been shared with invited participation from associations representing hydrological science soil conservation erosion control forestry environmental activism and so forth These delegations may have included fellow travellers in the work to protect headwater environments but their main concerns have not necessarily coincided with the Headwater Control group's prescriptions for the environmental regeneration of headwater regions The Liberec Workshop whose proceedings are distilled into this volume provided a first opportunity for the scattered supporters of Headwater Control to talk among themselves and find out to what degree there really is a shared vision of the way forward in headwater management restoration and protection
