Making the Local News Bob Franklin, David Murphy, 1998 Making News Richard R. John, Jonathan Silberstein-Loeb, 2015 This book charts the rise and fall of the newspaper as the primary medium for the conveyance of news The book focuses on two of the most influential media markets in the modern world Great Britain and the United States between 1688 and 1995 In 1688 Parliament created institutional arrangements that would hasten the rise of the newspaper as the dominant medium for the circulation of news In 1995 the National Science Foundation commercialized the Internet encouraging an astonishing proliferation of information on all manner of topics including the news Per capita newspaper circulation had been declining for decades partly due to shifting social norms and partly due to the rise of broadcast news The Internet exacerbated this trend partly because it provided a cheaper news source and partly because it quickly became a superior vehicle for advertising a major source of revenue for newspaper publishers for over two hundred years However only rarely has advertising revenue and direct sales covered costs Almost never has the demand for news generated the revenue necessary for its supply Non market institutional arrangements have ranged from direct government subsidies to organizational forms that enabled news organizations to cooperate From a historical perspective the large profits reaped by a handful of newspaper publishers in the post Second World War era were anomalous and in no sense a baseline for public policy Never again will the newspaper be the dominant news medium To guarantee an informed citizenry in the future it is necessary to understand how the news business worked in the past This book is organized around eight essays each written by a distinguished specialist and each explicitly comparative Its theme is the indispensability in both Great Britain and the United States of non market institutional arrangements in the provisioning of news Seeking News, Making China John Alekna,2024-03-19 Contemporary developments in communications technologies have overturned key aspects of the global political system and transformed the media landscape Yet interlocking technological informational and political revolutions have occurred many times in the past In China radio first arrived in the winter of 1922 23 bursting into a world where communication was slow disjointed or non existent Less than ten percent of the population ever read newspapers Just fifty years later at the beginning of the Cultural Revolution news broadcasts reached hundreds of millions of people instantaneously every day How did Chinese citizens experience the rapid changes in information practices and political organization that occurred in this period What was it like to live through a news revolution John Alekna traces the history of news in twentieth century China to demonstrate how large structural changes in technology and politics were heard and felt Scrutinizing the flow of news can reveal much about society and politics illustrating who has power and why and uncovering the connections between different regions peoples and social classes Taking an innovative holistic view of information practices Alekna weaves together both rural and urban history to tell the story of the rise of mass society through the lens of communication techniques and technology showing how the news revolution fundamentally reordered the political geography of China Mass Media and American Politics Doris A. Graber,Johanna Dunaway,2017-08-08 Mass Media and American Politics is the most comprehensive and best book for political communication This text has made it easy for my students to learn about research and theory related to political journalism and the political communication system in America It has great utility and insight while being comprehensive but not overwhelming for students Jason Martin DePaul University Known for its readable introduction to the literature and theory of the field Mass Media and American Politics is a trusted comprehensive look at media s impact on attitudes behavior elections politics and policymaking This Tenth Edition is thoroughly updated to reflect major structural changes that have shaken the world of political news and examines the impact of the changing media landscape It includes timely examples from the 2016 election cycle to illustrate the significance of these changes This classic text balances comprehensive coverage and cutting edge theory shows students how the media influence governmental institutions and the communication strategies of political elites and illustrates how the government shapes the way the media disseminate information Written by Doris A Graber a scholar who has played an enormous role in establishing and shaping the field of mass media and American politics and Johanna Dunaway this book sets the standard

The End of Local News as We Know It Chris Horne, 2020-05-12 Local news is broken and our communities are suffering because of it To fix that we need to rethink the problems around local journalism Step one stop trying to save journalism Step two challenge the received wisdom about how we got here and why our problems are really symptoms of bigger problems We can strengthen journalism and the places where we live by confronting old assumptions about what local news should be doing who should participate in making the news and how we should fund local news In The End of Local News As We Know It journalist Chris Horne walks readers through the current situation with local journalism the history of American newspapers and offers concrete suggestions and resources for revitalizing local news

Making Social Work News Meryl Aldridge, 2002-09-11 Social work has recently received some dreadful news coverage but the most extravagant headlines and accusations centre on local authority social work with children Moreover such accusations stem almost exclusively from the national press In Making Social Work News Meryl Aldridge widens the debate of social work and its representation by the news media The book falls into three parts the first providing students and practitioners with a basic understanding of the day to day working and commercial logic of the UK press The second part examines the press coverage of social work itself exploring its considerable variation comparing different news treatments between broadsheet and tabloids and between national and local papers The final part considers whether social work has particular difficulties in defining its goals and lobbying on its own behalf It concludes with some reflection on the importance of doing so now that marketing has become part of the policy process Making Social Work News will be invaluable to all students and lecturers in social work sociology and social policy as well as media and cultural studies It will also be essential reading for all social work professionals particularly those involved in training

News as Culture Ursula Rao, 2010-05-01 At the turn of the millennium Indian journalism has undergone significant changes The rapid commercialization of the press together with an increase in literacy and political consciousness has led to swift growth in the newspaper market but also changed the way news makers mediate politics Positioned at a historical junction where India is clearly feeling the effects of market liberalization this study demonstrates how journalists and informants interactively create new forms of political action and consciousness The book explores English and Hindi newsmaking and investigates the creation of news relations during the production process and how they affect political images and leadership traditions It moves beyond the news room to outline the role of journalists in urban society the social lives of news texts and the way citizens bring their ideas and desires to bear on the news discourse This important volume contributes to an emerging debate about the impact of the media on Indian society Furthermore it convincingly demonstrates the inseparable link between media related practices and dynamic cultural repertoires
