Punjab Sounds Radha Kapuria, Vebhuti Duggal, 2024-12-13 Punjab Sounds nuances our understanding of the region's imbrications with sound. It argues that rather than being territorially bounded, the region only emerges in regioning, i.e. in words, gestures, objects, and techniques that do the region. Regioning sound reveals the relationship between sound and the region in three interlinked ways: in doing, knowing, and feeling the region through sound. The volume covers several musical genres of the Punjab region, including within its geographical remit the Punjabi diaspora and east and west Punjab. It also provides new understandings of the role that ephemeral cultural expressions, especially music and sound, play in the formulation of Punjabi identity. Featuring contributions from scholars across North America, South Asia, Europe, and the UK, it brings together diverse perspectives. The chapters use a range of different methods, ranging from computational analysis and ethnography to close textual analysis, demonstrating some of the ways in which research on music and sound can be carried out. The chapters will be relevant for anyone working on Punjab's music, including the Punjabi diaspora music and sound in the Global South. Moreover, it will be useful for undergraduate and postgraduate students in the following areas: ethnomusicology, cultural studies, film studies, music studies, South Asian studies, Punjab studies, history, and sound studies, among others.

The Phonological Mind Iris Berent, 2013-01-10 Humans instinctively form words by weaving patterns of meaningless speech elements. Moreover, we do so in specific, regular ways. We contrast dogs and gods' favour blogs to lbogs. We begin forming sound patterns at birth, and like songbirds, we do so spontaneously, even in the absence of an adult model. We even impose these phonological patterns on invented cultural technologies such as reading and writing. But why are humans compelled to generate phonological patterns? And why do different phonological systems, signed and spoken, share aspects of their design? Drawing on findings from a broad range of disciplines, including linguistics, experimental psychology, neuroscience, and comparative animal studies, Iris Berent explores these questions and proposes a new hypothesis about the architecture of the phonological mind.

Soundscape Ecology Almo Farina, 2013-10-28 Soundscape Ecology represents a new branch of ecology, and it is the result of the integration of different disciplines like Landscape ecology, Bioacoustics, Acoustic ecology, Biosemiotics, etc. The soundscape, that is the object of this discipline, is defined as the acoustic context resulting from natural and human originated sounds and it is considered a relevant environmental proxy for animal and human life With Soundscape Ecology Almo Farina means to offer a new cultural tool to investigate a partially explored component of the environmental complexity For this he intends to set the principles of this new discipline to delineate the epistemic domain in which to develop new ideas and theories and to describe the necessary integration with all the other ecological environmental disciplines The book is organized in ten chapters The first two chapters delineate principles and theory of soundscape ecology Chapters three and four describe the bioacoustic and communication theories Chapter five is devoted to the human dimension of soundscape Chapters six to eight regard the major sonic patterns like noise choruses and vibrations Chapter nine is devoted to the methods in soundscape ecology and finally chapter ten describes the application of the soundscape analysis

The Mystery of Spirit George Robbins, 2021-02-25 Focusing on techniques of spiritual development and awareness of the presence of spirit in ordinary life Robbins challenges the reader to move beyond spiritual blockages and obstacles and raise the vibrational frequencies that bring us to greater enlightenment This reduces negative emotions such as despair meaninglessness and unhappiness Robbins wants to help us increase our pro social activity thereby contributing to a more open minded service towards others In this book he shows how to use effective techniques for practical and spiritual change while following a path of heart The Sarawak Museum Journal Sarawak Museum, 1911 A Ghost of Che Mauktik Kulkarni, 2009-08 The reader departs with the narrator from Louisville and accompanies him on his route which takes him from Peru through Argentina and Chile on his return through Peru and eventually on his return to Louisville Kentucky However the human side of the story that occurs with the narrator in fact the most outstanding part of the story does not follow as linear a path as the trip on which Kulkarni embarks through the areas of South America In fact what stands out most in the text is the mastery of narration that catches the reader from the first page and never lets go One continues reading because one wants to needs to in fact know what will happen next The plot contrasts the trip through geographic points the ponderings and reflections of Mauktik along his trip and his retrospective vision of his life The result is fascinating All of it awakens our attention The book is a cultural anthropological study that permits us access to the perspective of a person coming from another culture disparate from that of Latin America a non North American vision of our people and our customs What s fascinating is that the narrator does not speak Spanish fluently a reader that has a command of both languages quickly notes the linguistic errors However one immediately recognizes that the value and purpose of the book goes far beyond linguistic conventions A Ghost of Che explores the human condition as told by a narrator who travels thousands of kilometers in search of the unknown and who ends up finding himself in the process he discovers the goodness of people Probably the best tribute that one could make to the book would be to say that the reader wants to embark on a
