Questions and Answers

A Priori Concepts - Correct Answer: 1. Space
2. Time
3. Causality
4. Substance

Active Euthanasia - Correct Answer: Intentionally killing a patient by lethal injection, smothering or some other method.

Allegory of the Cave - Correct Answer: An extended metaphor created by Plato. It describes a group of prisoners in a cave, chained so their backs are to the entrance. They believe that the shadows (sensed reality) before them are reality, until someone manages to get free, turn around and see the source of the shadows (the real world, which can only be experienced intellectually).

Aristotle - Correct Answer: A philosopher and Plato's student who concentrated on empirical knowledge. He believed that change is necessary and natural, and everything has a purpose. He wrote Nicomachean Ethics, and that balance was the key to happiness.

Autonomy - Correct Answer: The capacity to take actions that are intentional, understood and chosen freely. Valued highly by Kant and Aristotle.

Buddhism - Correct Answer: An offshoot of Hinduism with saints instead of gods, and which emphasizes moral behavior to achieve happiness through many cycles of reincarnation.

Carol Gilligan - Correct Answer: A feminist psychologist who asserted that men and women have different approaches to moral decisions. Men have an ethics of justice, and focus on applying rules and minimizing emotions, while women have an ethics of care, and consider responsibilities, relationships and emotions. Both approaches are valuable to society.

Categorical Imperatives - Correct Answer: A concept developed by Kant. In deciding whether an action is right or wrong, a person should evaluate the action in terms of what would happen if everybody else in the same situation acted the same way.

Christianity - Correct Answer: A religion founded by Jesus Christ, based on the Bible, that teaches that humanity is fallen and can only find salvation through faith in Christ and his substitutory sacrifice.

Compensatory Justice - Correct Answer: The extent to which people are fairly compensated for their injuries by those who have injured them.

Transformation Lynn M. Nybell, Jeffrey J. Shook, Janet L. Finn, 2009-01-30 Social workers today not only face competing claims concerning the rights and needs of children and youth but they also confront contradictions between policy and practice Social workers are expected to fight for the best interests of the child even though financial support for children s welfare and education grows scarce They are asked to save children at risk while at the same time they are urged to protect communities from risky children and they are encouraged to leave no child behind while also implementing zero tolerance policies to keep educational environments free from troubled youth A cutting edge text that deals directly with the confusion and complexity of modern child welfare Childhood Youth and Social Work in Transformation features contributions from a truly interdisciplinary group of practitioners scholars and activists Examining the theoretical political and practical aspects of working with youth today this volume breaks free from existing modes of thought and strategies of practice and prompts readers to critically reflect on accepted approaches and new possibilities of action Contributors analyze how economic political and cultural changes over the last several decades have reshaped the experiences and representations of children and youth in the United States They examine conceptions of troubled children and youth in contemporary policies and programs and assess why certain discourses about troubling youth are so compelling to professionals policymakers and the public In conclusion these skilled professionals explore the reinvention of social work policy and practice including the need to forge relationships that respect the experiences rights and personhood of children and youth Intervention and
