Leadership in the Library and Information Science Professions Mark Winston, 2013-12-19. Safely guide your library into the new millennium. Like so much else in the information professions, leadership styles are being forced to change to meet the demands of technological innovation. Leadership in the Library and Information Science Professions is among the first books to focus on this increasingly important job qualification. It offers practical advice for developing strong, flexible and creative leadership skills in yourself and your staff. This fascinating volume stresses the leadership needed to manage change. The essential skills taught here will help you update library services at a reasonable pace while preserving valuable low tech alternatives. As one chapter recommends, Every librarian at every level should have ready an answer to multiple questions: Why do we still need libraries when everything is on the Web? How can you justify an expanding budget in the Internet Age? Leadership in the Library and Information Science Professions offers fresh ideas for developing and using leadership skills including recruiting tips for identifying potential leaders, staff training and development, restructuring the organization to encourage full staff participation, budget strategies for successful leaders, issues of gender and ethnic diversity, evaluating and assessing leadership. Leadership in the Library and Information Science Professions is an essential resource for library administrators and staff. By developing your leadership skills and those of your staff, you can confidently face the hectic pace of change in the information sciences.

The New Professional's Handbook Sheila Corrall, Antony Brewerton, 1999. Newly qualified library and information staff are thrown in at the deep end in their first jobs where they are expected to function as skilled practitioners. They find themselves in a world where technological developments and global competition are changing the shape and reach of information services. The scale and speed of change present constant challenges to develop awareness and understanding of the wider environment in order to improve local services. Their need for support in their professional development is particularly acute at this stage in their careers This easy to use manual aims to provide that support at both operational and strategic levels It is designed to help new professionals make sense of the contemporary information world and devise effective strategies for developing their skills and services It brings together a host of useful sources covering the professional and managerial aspects of information work introducing key concepts and techniques in a coherent framework and using practical examples to illustrate current organizational and service trends The book offers a global cross sectoral perspective on information resources and services covering strategy and marketing as well as day to day operations The thematic arrangement means that each chapter can be used as a self directed training module or as the basis of a session with a supervisor or mentor Packed with activities and reflection points the book encourages a critical approach through the use of questions and also offers annotated bibliographies providing quick access to relevant publications websites and organizations worldwide Readership Particularly valuable as an on the job reference source for those working towards chartered corporate membership of professional bodies this workbook also makes extremely useful reading for students and lecturers staff development officers those returning to employment after a break and established professionals in search of fresh perspectives or career development
