McMaster University Vol 1 The Toronto Years:

University Women Sara Z. MacDonald, 2021-11-15 Bessie Scott nearing the end of her first year at university in the spring of 1890 recorded in her diary Wore my gown for first time It didn't seem at all strange to do so Often deemed a cumbersome tradition by men the cap and gown were dearly prized by women as an outward sign of their hard won admission to the rank of undergraduates For the first generations of university women higher education was an exhilarating and transformative experience but these opportunities would narrow in the decades that followed In University Women Sara MacDonald explores the processes of integration and separation that marked women's contested entrance into higher education Examining the period between 1870 and 1930 this book is the first to provide a comparative study of women at universities across Canada MacDonald concludes that women's higher education cannot be seen as a progressive narrative a triumphant story of trailblazers and firsts of doors being thrown open and staying open The early promise of equal education was not fulfilled in the longer term as a backlash against the growing presence of women on campuses resulted in separate academic programs closer moral regulation and barriers that restricted their admission into the burgeoning fields of science technology engineering and mathematics The modernization of higher education ultimately marginalized women students researchers and faculty within the diversified universities of the twentieth century University Women uncovers the systemic inequalities based on gender race and class that have shaped Canadian higher education It is indispensable reading for those concerned with the underrepresentation of girls and women in STEM and current initiatives to address issues of access and equity within our academic institutions McMaster University, Volume 1 Charles M. Johnston, 2015-09 The Toronto Years is the first of three volumes relating the history of McMaster University It is not simply an institutional chronicle which lists names for the record it is a dramatic and colourful story that shows how the university grew out of earlier Baptist educational endeavours and describes its eventful first forty years spent on the Bloor Street Campus in Toronto McMaster University was established in 1887 as a trust of the Baptist constituency which helped to ensure vital and ongoing financial support but which also embroiled the school in the often bitter theological debates sweeping through the churches In the 1920s the struggle between modernism and fundamentalism threatened the university's very existence Fluctuating enrolment wartime stresses and education continually forced confrontations over the question of federation with the provincial university in Toronto Charles Johnston describes the achievements of a small group of courageous and skilful administrators amid the conflicting currents of educational and religious development in Canada during a period when universities were the targets of traditional criticisms of urban values This volume will be of interest to anyone concerned with the cultural and intellectual growth of the nation Physics and the Rise of Scientific Research in Canada Yves Gingras, 1991-03-01 The teaching of engineering and a change in liberal arts curricula both stimulated by industrial growth encouraged the creation of specialized courses in the sciences By the 1890s Gingras argues trained researchers had begun to appear in Canadian universities The technological demands of the First World War and the founding in 1916 of the National Research Council of Canada NRC accelerated the growth of scientific research The Transactions of the Royal Society of Canada could no longer publish everything submitted to it because of the disproportionately large number of research papers from the fields of science In response the NRC created the Canadian Journal of Research a journal specifically dedicated to the publication of scientific research By 1930 a stable national system of scientific research was in place in Canada Following the dramatic increase in the national importance of their disciplines scientists faced the problem of social identity Gingras demonstrates that in the case of physics this took the form of a conflict between those who promoted a professional orientation necessary to compete successfully with engineers in the labour market and those mainly in the universities who were concerned with problems of the discipline such as publication internal management and awards Physics and the Rise of Scientific Research in Canada is the first book to provide a general analysis of the origins of scientific research in Canadian universities Gingras proposes a sociological model of the formation of scientific disciplines distinguishing the profession from the discipline two notions often confused by historians and sociologists of science

Varsity's Soldiers Eric McGeer, 2019-08-22 The role of Canadian universities in selecting and training officers for the armed forces is an important yet overlooked chapter in the history of higher education in Canada For more than fifty years the University of Toronto supported the largest and most active contingent of the Canadian Officers Training Corps COTC which sent thousands of officer candidates into the regular and reserve forces Based on the rich fund of documents housed in the university archives Varsity's Soldiers offers the first full length history of military training in Toronto Beginning with the formation of a student rifle company in 1861 and focusing on the story of the COTC from 1914 to 1968 author Eric McGeer seeks to enlarge appreciation of the university's remarkable contribution to the defence of Canada the place of military education in an academic setting and the experience of the students who embodied the ideal of service to alma mater and to country

Fundamentalism, 1878-1978 Taylor Murray,Paul R. Wilson,2022-04-01 As the first single volume work to present a national picture of Baptist engagement with the fundamentalist movement in Canada in the late nineteenth and twentieth centuries Canadian Baptist Fundamentalism fills an important gap in the historiography It explores the contributions of well known fundamentalists such as T T Shields William Bible Bill Aberhart and J J Sidey while also introducing the reader to several lesser known figures including Joshua Denovan E J Stobo and T A Meister Together these studies demonstrate the diversity of the fundamentalist movement as it emerged and developed across Canada By drawing on material from across the country Canadian Baptist Fundamentalism addresses old themes in new ways and in the process raises a variety of questions and possibilities for new avenues of study

Housing the North American City Michael Doucet,John C. Weaver,1991-08-06

Doucet and Weaver begin this empirical analytical and narrative study with an analysis of the evolution of land development as an enterprise and continue with an examination of house design and construction practices the development of the apartment building and an account of class and age as they relate to housing tenure They also relate developments in Hamilton to the current state of urban historiography using their case study to resolve discrepancies and contradictions in the literature Among the major themes the authors deal with is a controversial exploration of what they see as a central North American urge the desire to own a home Other themes include the social allocation of urban space the quality and affordability of housing the increased interest of large corporations in the land development and financial service industries and a comparative analysis of housing in Canada and the United States The authors have drawn on civic and business records dating from the early nineteenth century to the latest planning data Combining this information with their comprehensive analysis Doucet and Weaver show that current housing problems and potential solutions are better understood when seen as part of a historical process They provide a critical assessment of the ways in which contemporary society produces shelter and question the use of technical innovations alone to resolve housing crises
