Pivotal Papers On Identification:

Pivotal Papers on Identification George H. Pollock, 1993 Collected in this anthology are pivotal papers that elaborate the psychoanalytic and psychodynamic approach to a basic mechanism which was elaborated by both Sigmund and Anna Freud Other classical references to this mechanism have been included and it is hoped that theorists and scholars will find them useful The modern psychotherapist must be sensitive to identification not only as a means of reflecting past internalizations but also of coping with current stresses predicated on what had been useful in the past There are defenses against identification there are hidden identifications there are combined identifications there are as well the more traditional considerations of identification with the aggressor The clinical and theoretical implications of this will become apparent as the classic papers included in this volume are reviewed and understood Brain and Culture Bruce E. Wexler, 2008-08-29 Research shows that between birth and early adulthood the brain requires sensory stimulation to develop physically The nature of the stimulation shapes the connections among neurons that create the neuronal networks necessary for thought and behavior By changing the cultural environment each generation shapes the brains of the next By early adulthood the neuroplasticity of the brain is greatly reduced and this leads to a fundamental shift in the relationship between the individual and the environment during the first part of life the brain and mind shape themselves to the major recurring features of their environment by early adulthood the individual attempts to make the environment conform to the established internal structures of the brain and mind In Brain and Culture Bruce Wexler explores the social implications of the close and changing neurobiological relationship between the individual and the environment with particular attention to the difficulties individuals face in adulthood when the environment changes beyond their ability to maintain the fit between existing internal structure and external reality These difficulties are evident in bereavement the meeting of different cultures the experience of immigrants in which children of immigrant families are more successful than their parents at the necessary internal transformations and the phenomenon of interethnic violence Integrating recent neurobiological research with major experimental findings in cognitive and developmental psychology with illuminating references to psychoanalysis literature anthropology history and politics Wexler presents a wealth of detail to support his arguments The groundbreaking connections he makes allow for reconceptualization of the effect of cultural change on the brain and provide a new biological base from which to consider such social issues as culture wars and ethnic violence Cognitive Architecture Deborah Hauptmann, Warren Neidich, 2010 Noo politics is most broadly understood as a power exerted over the life of the mind reconfiguring perception memory and attention This volume unites specialists in political and aesthetic philosophy neuroscience sociology and architecture and presents their ideas for re thinking the city in terms of neurobiology and Noo politics The book examines the relationship between information and communication calling for a new logic of representation and shows how architecture can merge with urban systems and processes to create new forms of network that empower the imagination and change our cultural landscape

Culture and Neural Frames of Cognition and Communication

Shihui Han, Ernst Pöppel, 2011-01-06 Cultural neuroscience combines brain imaging techniques such as functional magnetic resonance imaging and event related brain potentials with methods of social and cultural psychology to investigate whether and how cultures influence the neural mechanisms of perception attention emotion social cognition and other human cognitive processes The findings of cultural neuroscience studies improve our understanding of the relation between human brain function and sociocultural contexts and help to reframe the big question of nature versus nurture This book is organized so that two chapters provide general views of the relation between biological evolution cultural evolution and recent cultural neuroscience studies while other chapters focus on several aspects of human cognition that have been shown to be strongly influenced by sociocultural factors such as self concept representation language processes emotion time perception and decision making The main goal of this work is to address how thinking actually takes place and how the underlying neural mechanisms are affected by culture and identity

Ethics and Professional Issues in Couple and Family Therapy Lorna Hecker, 2012-07-26 While on some issues couple and family therapists have an exquisitely clear direction from professional codes of ethics others fall under gray areas that instead rely on therapists making reasoned ethical decisions. Therapists need to develop ethical sensitivity to potential ethical issues in order to decrease their risk in practice and increase their maneuverability in the therapy room. In Ethics and Professional Issues in Couple and Family Therapy Lorna Hecker and her contributing authors address various clinical scenarios that demonstrate the complex ethical situations couple and family therapists face every day. Some points discussed in this holistic book include boundary power and privilege issues along with unique ethical issues in practicing therapy with children. Risk issues when working with potential danger, suicide, and partner violence are also explored. Each chapter sensitizes readers to potential ethical issues and provides a model for ethical decision making that best promotes good on behalf of clients. Couple and family therapists will find this text an invaluable and inexhaustible resource.

Disaster Risk Reduction Mr. Rohit Manglik, 2023-12-23 Focuses on understanding, assessing, and mitigating risks of natural and man-made disasters, emphasizing preparedness, resilience, and policy frameworks for risk management.
