The Bottom Line or Public Health William H. Wiist,2010-03-03 When corporations claim the same citizenship rights as human citizens they exercise an undue influence on health policy and democratic processes Surprisingly the same basic repertoire of tactics has been found to be employed by corporations to effect this influence regardless of the specific industry at work In this book authors from around the world reveal the range of tactics used across the corporate world that ultimately favor the bottom line over the greater good The Bottom Line or Public Health deconstructs some of the most ubiquitous tactics at play including public relations political influence legal maneuvering and financial power using the pharmaceutical food and agriculture tobacco alcohol and motor vehicle industries as illustration However there is a growing global movement to counter this corporate force The book discusses the role of non governmental organizations indigenous peoples groups health advocates and social justice activists and the ways in which they are working to reduce corporate power and put control of policy back in the hands of individuals The Bottom Line or Public Health is for scholars interested in studying the corporate entity and for individuals and organizations who want to reclaim democracy for human citizens so that health is placed above the bottom line

Earth Matters Ciaran O'Faircheallaigh, Saleem Ali, 2017-09-08 Indigenous peoples have historically gained little from large scale resource development on their traditional lands and have suffered from its negative impacts on their cultures economies and societies During recent decades indigenous groups and their allies have fought hard to change this situation in some cases by opposing development entirely in many others by seeking a fundamental change in the distribution of benefits and costs from resource exploitation In doing so they have utilised a range of approaches including efforts to win greater recognition of indigenous rights in international fora pressure for passage of national and state or provincial legislation recognising indigenous land rights and protecting indigenous culture litigation in national and international courts and direct political action aimed at governments and developers often in alliance with non governmental organisations NGOs At the same time and partly in response to these initiatives many of the corporations that undertake large scale resource exploitation have sought to address concerns regarding the impact of their activities on indigenous peoples by adopting what are generally referred to as corporate social responsibility CSR policies This book focuses on such corporate initiatives It does not treat them in isolation recognising that their adoption and impact is contextual and is related both to the wider social and political framework in which they occur and to the activities and initiatives of indigenous peoples It does not treat them uncritically recognising that they may in some cases consist of little more than exercises in public relations However neither does it approach them cynically recognising the possibility that even if CSR policies and activities reflect hard headed business decisions and indeed perhaps particularly if they do so they can generate significant benefits for indigenous peoples if appropriate accountability mechanisms are in place In undertaking an in depth analysis of CSR and indigenous peoples in the extractive industries the book seeks to answer the following questions What is the nature and extent of CSR initiatives in the extractive industries and how should they be understood What motivates companies to pursue CSR policies and activities How do specific political social and legal contexts shape corporate behaviour What is the relationship between indigenous political action and CSR How and to what extent can corporations be held accountable for their policies and actions Can CSR help bring about a fundamental change in the distribution of benefits and costs from large scale resource exploitation and if so under what conditions can this occur Earth Matters gathers key experts from around the world who discuss corporate initiatives in Alaska Ecuador Australia Canada Peru Papua New Guinea Indonesia and Russia The book explores the great diversity that characterises initiatives and policies under the name of corporate social responsibility the highly contingent and contextual nature of corporate responses to indigenous demands and the complex and evolving nature of indigenous corporate relations It also reveals much about the conditions under which CSR can contribute to a redistribution of benefits and costs from large scale resource development Earth Matters will be essential reading for those working in and studying the extractive industry worldwide as well as those readers looking for a state of the art description of how CSR is functioning in perhaps its most difficult setting

Nationalism, Referendums and Democracy Matt Qvortrup, 2016-04-08 Democracy is above all about majority rule But which majority should rule if a part of a country wants to secede and become independent Should the majority of the whole country decide Or only the majority in the part that seeks to become independent be allowed to vote Referendums and democracy have often been perceived to be almost incompatible with nationalism and ethnicity Are there limits to democracy and the use of referendums This book looks at these issues through a comprehensive study of the referendums held on ethnic and nationalist issues since the French Revolution It analyses the pros and cons of referendums and presents a nuanced and up to date tour d horizon of the academic and scholarly writings on the subject by experts in international law comparative politics and international law This book was published as a special issue of Nationalism and Ethnic Politics

Woven Together James S. Mastaler,2019-04-17 Now more than ever it s critical that religious stories encompass a call to moral responsibility for the earth and to the global poor But the divorce between religious faith and science has left many people feeling unmoored and adrift at a time when we ought to be drawing closer to nature and each other It is a theological activity to see the world as it really is to look its suffering squarely in the face and tend to a wounded world The global poor especially women among them are some of the world s most disenfranchised people Their realities must inform the conversations about God and the world that people of faith are having in the church There is no salvation from the world only salvation with the world This means learning to live as a member of a community of mutual responsibility to look inward and ask ourselves how we might turn outward and live differently Concern for nature and social justice must become a central part of Christian moral life
