Westminster Part I: The Art, Architecture and Archaeology of the Royal Abbey Warwick Rodwell, Tim Tatton-Brown, 2020-04-27 The British Archaeological Association s 2013 conference was devoted to the study of Westminster Abbey and the Palace of Westminster It also embraced Westminster School which was founded at the Reformation in the Abbey precinct Collectively these institutions occupy a remarkable assemblage of medieval and later buildings most of which are well documented Although the Association had held a conference at Westminster in 1902 this was the first time that the internationally important complex of historic buildings was examined holistically and the papers published here cover a wide range of subject matter Westminster came into existence in the later Anglo Saxon period and by the mid 11th century when Edward the Confessor s great new abbey was built it was a major royal centre two miles south west of the City of London Within a century or so it had become the principal seat of government in England and this series of twenty eight papers covers new research on the topography buildings art history architecture and archaeology of Westminster's two great establishments Abbey and Palace Part I begins with studies of the topography of the area an account of its Roman period finds and an historiographical overview of the archaeology of the Abbey Edward the Confessor's enigmatic church plan is discussed and the evidence for later Romanesque structures is assembled for the first time Five papers examine aspects of Henry III's vast new Abbey church and its decoration A further four cover aspects of the later medieval period coronation and Sir George Gilbert Scott's impact as the Abbey's greatest Surveyor of the Fabric A pair of papers examines the development of the northern precinct of the Abbey around St Margaret's Church and the remarkable buildings of Westminster School created within the remains of the monastery in the 17th and 18th centuries Part II part deals with the Palace of Westminster and its wider topography between the late 11th century and the devastating fire of 1834 that largely destroyed the medieval palace William Rufus's enormous hall and its famous roofs are completely reassessed and comparisons discussed between this structure and the great hall at Caen Other essays reconsider Henry III's palace St Stephen's chapel the king's great chamber the Painted Chamber and the enigmatic Jewel Tower The final papers examine the meeting places of Parliament and the living accommodation of the MPs who attended it the topography of the Palace between the Reformation and the fire of 1834 and the building of the New Palace which is better known today as the Houses of Parliament

Cistercian Architecture and Medieval Society Maximilian Sternberg, 2013-08-15 In Cistercian Architecture and Medieval Society Maximilian Sternberg offers an account of the social functions of the built environment in medieval monasticism Few medieval monuments hold so privileged a place in the modern imagination as Cistercian abbeys yet Sternberg suggests it is precisely our own peculiarly modern fascination with the idea of Cistercian aesthetics that has hindered a full view of the complex social meanings of their architecture This book draws attention instead to the practical and symbolic means by which architecture helped the Cistercians to negotiate the dense web of relations that in actuality bound them to other spheres of medieval society It explores the permeability of monastic boundaries and considers their effectiveness in reconciling a simultaneous need for interaction and distance between monastic communities and these other social spheres

The Idea of the Castle in Medieval England Abigail Wheatley, 2015 Medieval castles have traditionally been examined as feats of military engineering tools of feudal control This book presents a different perspective by exploring the castle as a cultural reflection of the society that produced it seen through art literature of Mount Grace began in 1957 when Hope's interpretation of the monks' cells about the great cloister was found to be simplistic. This was followed between 1968 and 1974 by the excavation of individual monks' cells in the west range of the great cloister and two cells in the north range together with their gardens. Areas not excavated by Hope: The examination of the monks' cells was completed in 1985 by the excavation of the central cell of the north cloister range together with its garden and the cloister alley outside the cell. The cultural material recovered from these cells indicated the trade each monk practiced predominantly the copying and binding of books. Because each cell was enclosed by high walls the pottery and metalwork recovered could be identified to an individual monk. In 1987 English Heritage commissioned the re-examination of two areas that had been examined by Hope: the water tower in the great cloister and the prior's cell, refectory and kitchen in the south cloister range and the guest house in the west range of the inner court. The contrast between this semi-public area of the monastery and the monks' cells was dramatic. Coupled with this excavation was a reappraisal of the architectural development of the monastery and reconstruction of lost structures such as the cloister alley walls and the central water tower.

The Archaeology of Churches Warwick Rodwell, 2012-05-15 The definitive work on church archaeology Aelred of Rievaulx (1110-1167) Pierre-André Burton, 2020-12-15 2021 Catholic Media Association Award third place award in English translation edition. This book places the life of Aelred of Rievaulx, third abbot of the English Cistercian abbey of Rievaulx, within the hundred-year period from the Norman Conquest of England in October 1066 through Aelred's death in January 1167. While exploring what is known of Aelred's life from his own works and especially from the principal work of Walter Daniel, author of The Life of Aelred of Rievaulx, Burton considers the influence of both English and church history on Aelred's personality and purpose as Christian abbot and writer. He emphasizes the place of the crucified Christ at the center of Aelred's life while calling spiritual friendship not only personal but cosmological, the hermeneutic key to his teaching.

The Cistercian Order in Medieval Europe Emilia Jamrozik, 2015-06-22 The Cistercian Order in Medieval Europe offers an accessible and engaging history of the Order from its beginnings in the twelfth century through to the early sixteenth century. Unlike most other existing volumes on this subject, it gives a nuanced analysis of the late medieval Cistercian experience as well as the early years of the Order. Jamrozik argues that the story of the Cistercian Order in the Middle Ages was not one of a Golden Age followed by decline, nor was the true Cistercian spirit exclusively embedded in the early texts to remain unchanged for centuries. Instead, she shows how the Order functioned and changed over time as an international organisation held together by a novel management system from Estonia in the east to Portugal in the west and from Norway to Italy. The ability to adapt and respond to these very different social and economic conditions is what made the Cistercians so successful. This book draws upon a wide range of primary sources as well as scholarly literature in several languages to explore the following key areas: the degree of centralisation versus local specificity; how much the contact between monastic communities and lay people changed over time; how the concept of reform was central to the Medieval history of the Cistercian Order. This book will appeal to anyone interested in Medieval history and the Medieval Church more generally as well as those with a particular interest in monasticism

Prayer and Thought in Monastic Tradition Santha Bhattacharji, Dominic Mattos, Rowan Williams, 2014-03-27 Prayer and Thought in Monastic Tradition presents a chronological picture of the development of monastic thought and prayer from the early English Church Bede Adomnan through to the 17th Century and William Law's religious community at King's Cliffe Essays interact with different facets of monastic life assessing the development and contribution of figures such as Boniface the Venerable Bede Anselm of Canterbury and Bernard of Clairvaux The varying modes and outputs of the monastic life of prayer are considered with focus on the use of different literary techniques in the creation of monastic documents the interaction between monks and the laity the creation of prayers and the purpose and structure of prayer in different contexts The volume also discusses the nature of translation of classic monastic works and the difficulties the translator faces The highly distinguished contributors include G R Evans Sarah Foot Henry Mayr Harting Brian McGuire Henry Wansbrough and Rowan Williams
